Issues of Public Policy Obscured, Roosevelt Says

'Inquiry Into Charges of Personal and Official Misconduct'

Washington—(AP)—Chairman Arthur E. Morgan of the Tennessee Valley authority declined today to meet President Roosevelt's request for factual evidence to support charges that Morgan has made against the two other members of the TVA board.

"It is of the opinion that this meeting is not, and in the nature of the case cannot be, an effective or useful fact-finding occasion," Chairman Morgan told the president in a conference with the chief executive and the other two directors of TVA.

Morgan's statement came after President Roosevelt had asked him "what evidence of dishonesty or malfeasance on the part of your colleagues have you in regard to the so-called Berry marble case."

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt told the quarrelling TVA directors today he had been convinced reluctantly that their work was impeded and real issues of public policy obscured by personal recriminations.

The president made a long statement to the three members of the Tennessee Valley authority's board after they sat down for judgment by the president on charges that Chairman A. E. Morgan on one hand and Directors David E. Lilienthal and H. A. Morgan on the other have made against each other.

Chairman Morgan has accused his two associates of bad faith, responsibility for illegal expenditures and other things.

H. A. Morgan and Lilienthal have charged that the chairman was determined to "rule or ruin" TVA.

When the directors left the session for a luncheon recess, Stephen T. Early, a presidential secretary, said Chairman Morgan had read an opening statement following the president's remarks. Thereafter, Early asserted, Chairman Morgan refused to "give any facts" as the president demanded, electing to stand on his statement.

The president, according to stenographic "blow by blow" accounts of the hearing, set forth the charges and counter charges made by the three officials and asserted the success of TVA depended on "personal recriminations" cease.

"It is intolerable to the people of the United States," the president told the directors in his statement, "that issues of fundamental public policy should be confused with issues of personal integrity and misconduct."

Purpose of Hearing

"I have called this hearing," he said, "to investigate charges of dishonesty, bad faith and misconduct. This is not an inquiry to determine a national power policy, a national conservation policy, a national flood policy, or any other straight matter of policy. It is an inquiry into charges of personal and official misconduct."

After asking the three directors a few questions concerning their faith in the TVA project and making his statement to them, the president recessed the hearing at 1:30 p. m. (E. S. T.) until after luncheon.

All three directors said they believed in the feasibility and wisdom of the act which created the huge federal power and flood control agency.

Raps 'Powerful Interests'

The president then asserted "there are persons and powerful interests in this country that profess to disbelieve in the feasibility and wisdom of the act."

"There are persons and powerful interests," he asserted, "that are quick to seize on the simplest act or slightest word of members of the board to discredit the administration of the act."

Red Prosecutor Asks Execution Of 19 Prisoners

Compares Former Head of Secret Police With Al Capone

Moscow—(AP)—Death for 19 of the 21 defendants in Soviet Russia's greatest blood purge trial was demanded today by Prosecutor Andrei Y. Vishinsky at the end of a bitter summation of the government's treason and murder charges.

The only two spared from death were the once esteemed Soviet diplomat, Christian Rakovsky and S. A. Bessonov, a former Russian trade delegate.

For them, Vishinsky demanded 25 years imprisonment.

The prosecutor, demanding the life of Genrikh G. Yagoda, compared the once dreaded head of the secret police to Al Capone.

"We can not leave such people alive," he cried. "They can do so in America with Al Capones who kill and kidnap people they want to get out of the way. But Russia, thank God, is not America."

Vishinsky's demand spelled almost certain death for Alexis I. Rykov, premier of the Soviet Union for nearly 10 years after Nikolai Lenin, and for Nikolai Bukharin, chronicler of the red revolution—the trial's ranking prisoners.

It was believed also to mean execution for N. N. Krestinsky, once an eminent diplomat; Yagoda; A. F. Resnais, onetime commissar of foreign trade; Gregory E. Grinlov, former commissar of finance; a group of eminent physicians and fallen industrial and political leaders.

For five and a half hours, Vishinsky heaped invective on the group, which he called "this stinking heap of human scum." His whole summation, charging them with treason and murder, was to argue that their destruction would serve world peace and democracy.

Proposes 'Wide Open' G. O. P. State Primary

Milwaukee—(AP)—Laurence V. Donovan, the Milwaukee County Young Republican club's chairman, said today he would ask the Young Republicans' state committee for a "wide open" G. O. P. primary in this year's state election.

Added Liquor Tax Retained In House Vote

Members Refuse to Eliminate Amendment By Virginian

'FAMILY' LEVY DEAD

Surtax Proposal Defeated By Vote of 233 To 153

Washington—(AP)—The house passed the tax bill and sent it to the senate today after declining to reinsert a special surtax on family owned and closely held corporations.

The roll call vote on passage, Speaker Bankhead announced was 284 to 98.

It refused also to go back and eliminate an undistributed profits tax, impose a flat levy of 12 1/2 per cent on capital gains, or kill an increase in the levy on hard liquor.

Washington—(AP)—The house reaffirmed today its decision to boost the tax on hard liquor by 25 cents a gallon, even though it had heard warnings that the result might be the return of the bootlegger.

On a roll call vote announced by Speaker Bankhead as 290 to 96, it balked at taking out of the tax revenue bill an amendment by Representative Robertson (D-Va.) to raise the liquor levy from $2 to $2.25 a gallon.

Earlier, the membership killed an attempt to put back in the tax revenue bill an administration proposal for a special surtax on family owned and closely held corporations.

Speaker Bankhead announced that the roll call vote was 233 to 153.

The action paved the way for a vote on final passage of the hefty revenue measure.

Eliminate Surtax

Republicans and rebelling Democrats refused for a second and final time to include the "1B" surtax on closely held companies in the bill.

They have contended it would subject legitimate business enterprises to a punitive tax in an attempt to reach a few firms that might be used for tax avoidance purposes.

Backers of the surtax said it was a means of attaining equity in taxation.

Discussing the closely-held corporations tax at his press conference, President Roosevelt said it was not a punitive levy. He contended it was an effort to restore equality in taxation for two people in the upper brackets making the same profits.

Asked to comment on the stricken tax, the president said it might be interesting to some newspapers that what the administration was seeking was to end special privileges where it exists under present tax laws.

Higher Liquor Levy

Representative Robertson (D-Va.) persuaded the house yesterday to vote an increase of 25 cents a gallon in the liquor tax, which he said would produce $35,000,000 a year.

Representative Thompson (D-Ill.) succeeded in tacking on an amendment.

Pleads Guilty of Drunken Driving

John Vandervelden, Grand Chute, Fined $50 And Costs

Kaukauna—John Vandervelden, town of Grand Chute, pleaded guilty of drunken driving and was fined $50 and costs by Justice of the Peace Barney J. Mitchka in justice court here this morning.

He paid the fine.

He was arrested by Kaukauna police at 2:30 yesterday afternoon on Wilson street following a traffic accident in which he was involved. Police said Vandervelden struck a car driven by Walter H. Benz and failed to stop. Benz followed Vandervelden for two blocks, stopped him and then notified police, they reported.

The rear end of the Benz machine was damaged in the collision.

Physicians Report Duncan Suffered 'Acute Alcoholism,' Prosecutor Says

Milwaukee—(AP)—District Attorney Herbert J. Steffes said today that two Milwaukee police department physicians who examined Thomas M. Duncan, executive secretary to Governor LaFollette, reported that Duncan was suffering with "acute alcoholism" shortly after his arrest here Wednesday night in connection with a fatal automobile accident.

German Troops Cross Boundary; Schuschnigg Quits; Plebiscite Is Off

Individual Security and National Stability Depend On Jobs, Roosevelt States

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt, opening the nation's annual community chest campaign declared today that "only in jobs and more jobs, at good pay, shall we find national stability and individual security."

Addressing a meeting of the Mobilization for Human Needs in the east room of the White House, the president appealed for a "united front" in making the 1938 private charity program a success.

He pointed out that direct relief, provided by the community chests, was aimed at "many problems of human misfortune—adjusting maladjusted families, taking care of the sick, tiding over crises in family life."

Work relief, a federal task to which he said he was definitely committed, "is designed to provide jobs for 'normal people who can give useful work to the country, and seeking adjustment of a maladjusted society rather than of maladjusted individuals.'"

Youth Affected

"The importance of these employable millions may be more fully understood, perhaps," Mr. Roosevelt said, "when it is realized that approximately one-third of them are under 25 years of age and will be either assets or liabilities for many years to come, depending upon public policies toward them."

"If we do not give them a chance at something like normal living, it is inevitable that they will become millions of individual problems. For these able-bodied unemployed, I am definitely committed to the giving of jobs instead of relief."

The president said it was true that the "national economy does not today permit the federal government to give useful work to all the employable needy unemployed, but the federal government is doing so in the great majority of cases."

Work Program Needed

The able-bodied unemployed "need work and should have it," he continued, adding:

"But equally the economic system needs that they should have it. A federal works program not only serves the unemployed, it saves the jobs of those who have jobs."

"Our industrial production cannot progress, as it must, unless our masses have income with which to buy its products."

Noting that this was the twenty-fifth anniversary of the establishment of community chests and councils, Mr. Roosevelt said he hoped the organization would widen its appeal "until every citizen with a competence—great or little—extends the helping hand to his less favored brother."

"Here is a work in which diverse creeds and classes can unite for the common good. Let us strive to bring into every community practical exemplification of the ideal of being a good neighbor. In that spirit I appeal to the American people to present a united front in the 1938 Mobilization for Human Needs."

Fascists in Drive On Eastern Spain

Government Aragon Army Moves to Meet New Offensive

Hendaye, France, at the Spanish Frontier—(AP)—With Belchite lost, the government's Aragon army moved up to meet the insurgent's great offensive today in a battle for control of eastern Spain.

Military advisers said the government, which had been withdrawing steadily before the three-day-old thrust, had been forced by insurgent gains to take a stand, risking its main army in a major clash to decide the fate of the Mediterranean seaboard.

Insurgents said a Moorish corps commanded by General Juan Yague occupied Belchite last night after a day-long bombardment and thus demolished a 17-mile deep salient established by the government last September.

Americans and British volunteers were among the prisoners taken.

Whitney Accused Of $100,000 Theft From Trust Fund

Former Stock Exchange President Facing Criminal Trial

New York—(AP)—An indictment charging Richard Whitney, former president of the New York Stock Exchange with the theft of $100,000 in securities today transformed the collapse of the brokerage firm he headed into a case for the criminal courts.

The indictment, returned by a New York county grand jury yesterday in a lightning action, accused Whitney of first degree grand larceny in the misappropriation of the securities from a trust fund of which he was executor and co-trustee.

The heavy-set, grave Whitney, five times president of the stock exchange and Wall street leader through the critical years of the depression, was charged with the appropriation of securities of an aggregate value of about $105,000 for personal loans from a fund established by his father-in-law, the late George R. Sheldon, leaving in the fund only a single share of Bethlehem Steel company stock with a market value of $55.

Mooney Fails to Win His Freedom

Bill Lost in California Assembly; Lacks 2 Votes of Majority

Sacramento, Calif.—(AP)—Tom Mooney's dramatic fight before the state assembly to win a legislative pardon failed today.

A unique bill to free Mooney from San Quentin prison, where he is serving a life term for the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness day bombing which killed 10 and injured 40 people, met the same fate as every other bill in his 21 year fight for vindication.

After hearing Mooney himself repeat his oft-told story that he was "framed," the assembly voted 39 to 35 to free him but that was two votes short of the necessary majority of 80 members. Since two assemblymen have died there actually are only 78 members but the speaker ruled 41 was necessary for a majority.

Then began a long night session during which the sergeant-at-arms tried to round up four missing members. The bill finally failed when at 12:55 a. m. (2:55 a. m. C.S.T.) the assembly voted 38 to 28 against remaining in session longer.

Assemblyman Ellis E. Patterson announced he would bring the measure up for reconsideration at 10 a. m. today (12 noon C.S.T.) when all members were expected to be present. Opponents predicted he would fail.

7 CIO Organizations Face Contempt Charges

Milwaukee—(AP)—Federal Judge Ferdinand A. Geiger today ordered seven CIO organizations and 27 individuals to show cause why they should not be cited for contempt for violation of an injunction prohibiting violence at the A. F. Gallun and Sons corporation tannery. A strike has been in progress at the tannery for six months.

DR. WIRT DIES

Dr. Wirt was a member of the National Education Association and had been in the Gary schools for 25 years.

Chinese Planes Bomb Airfield in Nanking

Shanghai—(AP)—The Chinese war was fought in the air today.

Two squadrons of Chinese planes in a sudden attack bombed the Japanese airfield at Nanking, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's last capital.

A Japanese said there was no damage, but Chinese said 10 planes were destroyed. A Japanese military train between Pengpu and Linhaiwan also was bombed.

American missionaries at Tenkhsien reported a low-flying Japanese plane dropped two bombs on mission property, without damage.

Japanese planes bombed Sian, provincial capital of Shensi in west central China, destroyed ten houses and killed three persons.

On the main front, at Chengchow in Honan province, more than 50 American and other foreign missionaries joined forces and took refuge in the Southern Baptist compound, anticipating air raids by the Japanese momentarily.

Claim Corporation Owes State $1,200 for Sand

Madison—(AP)—The public service commission announced today that the Armco corporation owes the state about $1,200 for sand and gravel illegally removed from Lake Michigan in the town of Caledonia, Racine county.

The material screened for commercial use, was scooped from the lake bed near the shore line from 1933 through 1937, the commission said. The material was valued at 2 cents a cubic yard.

The commission said it would attempt to make a settlement with the corporation. A lake bed is state property.

Austrian Forces are Ordered to Fall Back Without Resistance

Britain 'Gravely Concerned' Over Developments

TALKS FRUITLESS

Von Ribbentrop Postpones Departure Until Tomorrow

London—(AP)—The Austrian legation announced tonight that Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg had resigned.

The legation statement said: "We have received official news from Vienna that Schuschnigg yielding to pressure has resigned."

"The power now rests in the hands of Miklas (President Wilhelm Miklas) who in the normal way at any rate would appoint a new chancellor."

London—(AP)—Britain today informed Germany of "the grave concern of his majesty's government at methods being adopted" in Reichsfuehrer Hitler's drive to nazify Austria.

Official circles said Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax had emphasized to German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop "the possible repercussions of such methods and their effect on British-German relations."

Von Ribbentrop, former ambassador to London, unexpectedly postponed his return to Berlin until tomorrow, possibly in connection with the swiftly developing Austrian situation.

He had been expected to leave tonight after two days of fruitless talks with British leaders, who had hoped thereby to advance Chamberlain's plan for European appeasement.

The representation to Von Ribbentrop was interpreted as a plan warning that Britain would not negotiate with Germany so long as Hitler treated matters in central Europe as his own family affair.

Meanwhile Britain gave Germany a mild, carefully-phrased warning against military interference with the plebiscite, and Britain and France awaited official information of Italy's attitude toward the grave developments in central Europe.

Official British sources said reports had been received of "certain movements of troops in Bavaria" and that Britain had expressed to Germany the hope that the purpose of such movements was to preserve order on the Austro-German frontier.

Fire Levels School With Loss of $50,000

Bergland, Mich.—(AP)—The Bergland grade school was destroyed by fire today with a loss estimated at $50,000. The fire was discovered at 6:30 a. m. by David Dean, janitor, who saw smoke coming from a partition in the basement when he returned to the building after a few minutes absence. A volunteer bucket brigade was unable to check the flames.

The two-story building was erected 28 years ago, of brick and frame construction. Last summer extensive repairs and improvements were made. Temporary quarters for classes will be provided in the high school building.

New Regime Expected to Be Satisfactory to Hitler

Nazis in Austria Wild With Joy Over Developments

Paris—(AP)—High officials of the foreign office declared today that Britain had refused to join France and Italy in "any action whatsoever" to defend Austrian independence.

Vienna—(AP)—With German troops reported marching into Austrian territory, the Austrian government was being reorganized in a closely guarded chancellery tonight while nazi throngs virtually took possession of Vienna.

The swastika flag, emblem of nazi triumph, was raised over the chancellery, seat of the Austrian government.

Vienna—(AP)—The Austrian government press bureau announced tonight that German troops had crossed the Austrian border at Passau.

Austrian troops were ordered to fall back without resistance.

A high official said that the resignation of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg was expected.

The official declared that the next Austrian government would be completely satisfactory to Germany. He added it was possible Schuschnigg would be retained in some capacity.

Schuschnigg announced by radio that Germany had presented an ultimatum with a time limit demanding the reorganization of the Austrian government.

Austria, said Schuschnigg, had yielded to Germany's demands and "the object is to prevent the spilling of German blood."

Miklas Gets Ultimatum

The chancellor said the ultimatum had been presented to President Wilhelm Miklas, and that the president thereupon had conferred with army officers.

At the end of his short announcement Schuschnigg said: "I say goodbye with the wish that God protect Austria."

It was not known immediately whether the "goodbye" meant his resignation.

Arthur Seys-Inquart, the Hitler-approved minister of the interior, in a radio broadcast asked that there be no resistance to the German troops coming in. He urged Austrian nazis to maintain strict discipline.

At the chancellery it was said that the government was being reorganized and that a new cabinet list would be announced shortly.

Vienna—(AP)—The government announced tonight that the plebiscite on Austria's independence had been postponed.

The announcement followed reports that Germany and Austria's nazis had exerted powerful pressure to avert the referendum, which Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg had called for Sunday.

It came as Austria was assuming the aspect of an armed camp, with clashes in many cities between nazis and fatherland front supporters of Schuschnigg's fight for independence.

Reports that Schuschnigg had resigned were officially denied by the office of President Wilhelm Miklas at 7 p. m. (12 noon C. S. T.).

Announcement of the postponement, which reached the public in a short radio communication brought on a great outburst of nazi enthusiasm in downtown Vienna.

Nazis had gathered by thousands for demonstrations against the vote. When word came it was called off they went wild.

Almost immediately police and military forces were withdrawn, leaving downtown Vienna more or less in nazi possession.

Arthur Seys-Inquart, Austrian minister of the interior and close friend of Germany's Reichsfuehrer Hitler, was reported to have presented a demand, "like an ultimatum," for cancellation or postponement of the referendum.

Arnold Approved For Federal Job By Subcommittee

No Ballots Against Him but Two Senators Fail To Vote

Washington—(U)—A senate judiciary subcommittee approved today the nomination of Thurman W. Arnold, a Yale professor, to be assistant attorney general in charge of the justice department's anti-trust division.

There were no votes against Arnold, but Senators Borah (R-Idaho) and Burke (D-Neb.), refrained from balloting. Senators Norris (I-Neb.), Neely (D-W. Va.) and O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.) voted in favor of the nomination.

Borah and Burke said they were withholding their votes to consider the nomination further. They will be entitled to vote again when the nomination is considered by the full judiciary committee, the next step toward Arnold's confirmation by the senate.

Borah questioned Arnold closely during a hearing on his nomination regarding his views toward enforcement of the anti-trust laws.

Arnold replied that he believed in "vigorous and fair" enforcement of the laws, and said he had gained the impression from Arnold's book "The Folklore of Capitalism" that the latter did not "believe in the principle of the anti-trust laws."

The youngish-appearing attorney, leaning forward over the committee table and gesturing for emphasis, replied:

"The anti-trust laws at present are an imperfect instrument. Nevertheless, they are the instrument we have and their enforcement should be both vigorous and fair."

The committee was interested in some of Arnold's "Folklore" statements, including observations on the anti-trust crusades of Borah.

"Men like Senator Borah," Arnold wrote, "founded political careers on the continuance of such crusades, which were entirely futile but consciously picturesque, in terms of personal prestige."

Giving "people like Borah" full credit for sincerity in believing anti-trust legislation to be the answer to monopolies, Arnold wrote nevertheless that "by virtue of the great crusades against them, the very corporations grew bigger and bigger, and more and more respectable."

If the government really wanted to destroy big trusts, he wrote, a few well directed taxes would accomplish that.

which increased in intensity as Sunday's independence plebiscite neared.

The Nazi, stabbed last night in a minor Nazi-fatherland front affair in Florisdorf, a workers' suburb of Vienna, succumbed this morning.

Hans Litalich, 25-year-old teacher and supporter of Chancellor Schuschnigg, died of injuries received last week in a political attack on his school.

Disorders spread through the Austrian provinces, while in Vienna the war ministry ordered mobilization of 100,000 troops of the reserve, called 30,000 national guardsmen to immediate duty and strengthened the bodyguard around Chancellor Schuschnigg because of Nazi threats against his life.

In Linz, a Nazi stronghold, three shots were fired from a building at Nazis starting a march toward the suburb of Urfahr.

Some of the Nazis rushed into the building, declaring members of the anti-Nazi Sturm Corps had fired the shots. Three were injured in the resulting fight.

Eight others were less seriously injured in a second Linz street fight when Nazis and supporters of Schuschnigg clashed at the Danube bridge. Police finally stopped both fights.

The Vienna government ordered all soldiers and police to remain in barracks, without the daily one or two hour leave.

Upon Chancellor Schuschnigg's instructions the 100,000 reserves, untrained, 23-year-old men, with at least 10 months service, were ordered to report immediately to their corps commanders for service throughout Austria.

Schuschnigg's guard was increased after Nazis cried "Schuschnigg, watch out, for you will meet the fate of Dollfuss" (the assassinated chancellor).

Says "Position Shaky"

An ominous hint, but without official confirmation, came from a person close to the Nazi endorsed minister of interior, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, friend of Germany's Hitler who approved him for the post.

"Schuschnigg's position is shaky," this person said, "Seyss-Inquart may soon be his successor."

It appeared likely Nazis would refrain from voting Sunday when the people will be asked to approve Schuschnigg's determination to fight for Austrian independence as against the Nazi demands for union with Germany.

Asked whether the intensive precautions meant martial law was being declared, army circles answered:

"It is a matter only of a technical name."

There were no official figures on the total number of troops, police and reserves on protective duty but a likely figure is 500,000.

These forces have varying equipment including tanks, machine-guns, howitzers, and sabers.

unit from Berlin to reach the frontier area near Munich.

Nazi sources here, in close touch with Berlin, said General Walter von Reichenau, commander of the German Fourth army group, had left Berlin for Munich.

These reports naturally could not be confirmed here. (Nazis in Berlin avowed there was no intention by Germany to use force in furthering desired nazification of and union with Austria, but added that it was in Schuschnigg's hands to determine whether Austria should be "made over" peacefully or whether blood should be shed.)

Nazi quarters said they would protest to the supreme court after Sunday's plebiscite seeking to have the results declared void on constitutional grounds.

Reich Envoys Arrive

Special envoys were arriving periodically by special airplanes from Berlin for lengthy and almost continuous consultation with Nazi leaders.

Shouting and street parading started early today. Workers were planning mass appearances Saturday afternoon.

Styrian peasants were arriving by hundreds in Graz, Nazi stronghold.

Saltzburg remained jittery after repeated night clashes between Nazi youths, most of the age of 18 to 20, and police and boys loyal to the government.

Nazis assembled for demonstrations against the plebiscite but police with truncheons dispersed them under the law forbidding such gatherings.

A hail of stones greeted the police, but the police were sent to a hospital with a head wound. Five boys were badly injured.

Strong Guard at Graz

Soldiers and police redoubled the guard at the provincial capitol and city hall at Graz. Patrols were stationed on all bridges, allowing the people to leave but not enter the city.

Forty-six large trucks with soldiers from Vienna were enroute to Graz.

In downtown Vienna fatherland front demonstrations grew louder at noon. Schuschnigg's new private army, the Sturm Korps, was issued arms.

The unofficial word from Germany was that Austrian Nazis were to be freed of all restraint. If there be bloodshed, said a Nazi spokesman in Berlin, it will be Schuschnigg's fault.

The Nazis are angered because they feel Schuschnigg broke faith with Fuehrer Hitler on the agreement for friendship drafted at Berchtesgaden last month, and by which outlawed Austrian Nazis won a limited measure of new privileges.

"Don't Vote" Slogan

"Don't vote" was the Nazi slogan today, after yesterday's disorders in which more than 40 persons were injured.

The words "civil war" were heard in Graz as Nazi resentment mounted.

The Nazi leader, Hugo Jury, gave the Nazi his advice to stay away from the plebiscite, condemning the plebiscite as unconstitutional and an insult to loyal Austrian citizens.

The Nazi theory was: Allow Schuschnigg to roll up a large majority, then say "what of it?" and hold that "the Nazis did not recognize the election as legal and therefore did not participate."

In Linz, a Nazi stronghold, three shots were fired from a building at Nazis starting a march toward the suburb of Urfahr.

3 Hurt in Clash

Some of the Nazis rushed into the building, declaring members of the anti-Nazi Sturm Corps had fired the shots. Three were injured in the resulting fight.

Tracy and Rainer Given Awards for Screen Portrayals

Hollywood—(U)—Spencer Tracy, a likable lad from Milwaukee, and Luise Rainer, a shy Austrian brunette, were hailed today as the No. 1 stars of the 1937 film year.

Seventeen gold statuettes, the "Oscars" symbolic of outstanding achievement in the industry, were passed out last night by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. The two that counted most—the best acting—went to Tracy and Miss Rainer.

Recovering at a hospital from an operation, Tracy got the news from his wife that his characterization of a Portuguese sailor in "Captains Courageous" had been rewarded.

"It's the nicest thing that's happened to me in my whole life," he said.

Miss Rainer, a bird-like little figure in a light dress, with her black bangs windblown across her forehead, was present at the academy banquet when it was announced she had won a statuette for her Chinese peasant role in "The Good Earth."

Last year she also won for her impersonation of Anna Held in "The Great Ziegfeld." Her double victory is unprecedented in the 10-year history of the academy acting awards.

The award for the best picture of 1937, as determined by a poll of 15,000 film workers including extras, went to Warner brothers' "The Life of Emile Zola."

Rome and Berlin were in constant contact yesterday, leading to the reports Premier Mussolini would give Schuschnigg no help as he made ready to do in 1934 by sending troops to the Austrian border after Chancellor Dollfuss was assassinated.

The Nazi sentiment is that the Austrian chancellor got himself into a fix by provoking Nazi resentment in suddenly calling a plebiscite; now he'll have to see for himself how he'll get out of it.

In German eyes, Schuschnigg didn't play fair after the Berchtesgaden agreement with Hitler last month, which was presented as a step toward more friendly cooperation between the two countries.

Professional conservationists of Wisconsin today were concluding the first annual conservation school sponsored by the state conservation department at the state capitol. The entire field personnel of the department, foresters, rangers, wardens and others, are sitting in classes listening to state officers and experts explaining that conservation has become one of the most fundamental programs in American life, and particularly in Wisconsin, where natural resources represent an enormous economic asset.

The state field men who make conservation a profession, and many private citizens who have made it a hobby, this week learned about one of Wisconsin's most profound problems, and what to do about it. Northern Wisconsin residents, stranded since the disappearance of

Handsomeness English Coach Replacing Wicker Buggy When Baby Goes Bye-Bye

BY DON ANDERSON

Don't blame baby he acts highbrow when he's riding in his new 1938 buggy and treats with disdain your childish attempts to catch his attention.

Baby's new 1938 buggy is just about the snappiest thing on wheels and anyone riding in it has just cause to smirk at passerby and ignore those who think he's interested in such trifles as watches that tick or funny faces.

Actually, the word "buggy" is no longer used in select circles. The better informed babies speak of "going out for a drive in the English coach."

And English coaches they are modeled after the smart 4-wheeled coaches that smart people were seen in before the days of streamlined cars. Not even daddy's 1938 car, with its flowing lines and powerful motor, can make baby faintly jealous. True, his English coach doesn't have bumpers, headlights, motor, or horn, but it has more gadgets and conveniences than any used by his predecessors.

Baby is quite certain, after looking over coaches now being shown by Appleton dealers, that a lot of grownups who tower over him and act so superior when he can't get the spoutful of milk into his mouth are going to wish they were his age. Then they could ride on sunny afternoons in the nice new carriages, with mother or nurse at the controls. And baby laughs when he thinks of the junk these grown-ups rode in when they were just starting out in life.

Keeps Out Drafts

Baby's English coach is an improvement over fiber buggies because it's both windproof and waterproof. It doesn't allow the drafts that can enter wicker buggies. The coach is equipped with a visor that can be pulled down if the sun is too hot and a storm shield that can be buttoned on the front if snow or rain starts to fall before the little traveler gets back home.

The upholstery is handsome and durable. The coaches have storage space in the bottom for groceries or other articles, zipper pockets, hand brake, and ball bearings. The springs, well hidden under the body of the coach, and tires are improved so that baby has the best of riding comfort.

There are braces which can be let down when the coach is parked in front of a store so if baby suddenly stands up and cheers, his vehicle won't tip over. When he begins to lengthen out and his feet hit the end, there is a panel which can be pulled out to allow extra room.

One Appleton store had a convertible job on display yesterday. The top can be taken down, the center cushion shoved up for a back rest, a panel pulled down for a foot rest and there you have a "stroller." It is just like the process that turns a convertible coupe into an open roadster. For sporting purposes, baby will use the stroller idea.

English coaches for babies are priced at from $25 to $58 in one Appleton store. "When the coaches first came out, they were too high priced for most people to buy," the salesman said yesterday. "But manufacturers have steadily brought the price down and are making smaller models that cost about the same as wicker buggies."

Baby has on occasions ordered white or cream-colored English coaches, but gray is the most popular color, the salesman said.

Heinemann Within His Rights Sending Relief Patients to Hospital

(Post-Crescent Madison Bureau)

Madison—Attorney General Orland S. Loomis in an opinion to District Attorney R. P. Dohr of Outagamie county today said that a county judge may certify indigent patients for treatment at local hospitals rather than the Wisconsin General hospital at Madison if the cost at the local institution is equal or less than the latter.

In his request for an interpretation of the statutes covering the treatment and hospitalization of indigents, Dohr told Loomis that a dispute has arisen in Appleton between doctors and hospitals on one side, and the county court on the other.

According to Dohr, the Outagamie county judge has certified admissions of indigent patients to a local hospital on a state form by striking out the name of the State of Wisconsin General hospital, and substituting the name of the local institution, with the provision that the expense to the county must be no more than certification to the state hospital.

Such procedure is legal, Loomis said, and within the discretionary powers of the county court.

Ample Variety of Fruits, Vegetables At Markets Today

Stores Featuring "Specials" for Shoppers Buying Weekend Food

An ample variety of fresh fruits and vegetables greets the shopping housewives in Appleton stores today.

Such "specials" as seven Texas seedless grapefruit for 25 cents, three pounds of onions for 10 cents, three pounds of bananas for 17 cents, three bunches of radishes for 10 cents, and two pounds of spinach for 11 cents were observed today, prices quoted here may vary with different stores, but approximate the average.

Tomatoes from 11 to 15 cents a pound, 10 grapefruit for 18 cents, a fancy box of Delicious apples for $1.65, and two dozen oranges for 29 cents were prices advertised today.

Michigan No. 1 potatoes were priced at from 21 to 25 cents a peck, cabbage at four and five cents a pound, carrots at five cents a bunch, lemons five for 11 cents, and celery at five cents a bunch.

Other prices advertised today: Spitzbergers, Delicious, and Jonathan apples, six pounds for 25 cents; Winesap at seven pounds for 25 cents; sweet potatoes, four pounds for 25 cents; Baldwin apples, seven pounds, 25 cents; Idaho potatoes, 27 cents a peck.

Motorman and Collie are Friends After Two Years

Milwaukee—(U)—Charley Litchfield today met "Pedro, Zacharski" the big black collie which for the last two years has bolted after Charley's speeding North Shore electric train to snatch folded newspaper the engineer tossed to him.

For both Charley and Pedro, the meeting was a success. The proud, intelligent dog made much more fuss over Charley than he ever does over strangers, his master, Joseph Zacharski, was quick to say.

Pedro's reserve is a byword on the little 18-acre farm near South Milwaukee, but that reserve was completely lacking today as the big dog put his paws on Charley's chest and admitted him to the inner circle.

It was Charley's day off, and the gray-haired employee of the North Shore since 1904 made it a busman's holiday by taking an early train to Milwaukee to visit the Zacharski farm for the first time and meet Pedro and Sylvester Zacharski, 14, to whom Pedro swears allegiance.

Pedro even displayed his two friends, a nameless black cat and an equally anonymous white rabbit, with whom he gets along right well.

While Charley cemented his friendship with Pedro by feeding him crunchy and tasty dog biscuits.

Mr. and Mrs. Zacharski told how Pedro usually keeps visitors "prisoners" in their cars until some member of the family arrives, and how Pedro on Sundays carefully lays Charley's tossed-out paper on the doorstep ready for the family when they return from church.

Safe Driver Award Plan Goes Into Effect Monday

Madison—(U)—William Leslie, general manager of the National Bureau of Casualty and Surety Underwriters, informed Insurance Commissioner H. J. Mortenson today that the bureau would put in effect its safe driver award plan in Wisconsin beginning March 14.

The plan, disapproved by Mortenson, provides first for a rate increase in auto insurance rates of about 5 per cent, and for a 15-per cent refund to all drivers who have had no accident during the insured period. The plan does not require the approval of the insurance commissioner.

"The future alone can determine the wisdom of your course," Mortenson replied to Leslie, adding that discussion of the matter was closed.

British Amused at Controversy Over Sale of Writings

Incident Has Its Parallel In England Several Years Ago

BY DAVID LAWRENCE
Washington—Many of the erudite New Dealers often justify many of their attitudes toward public affairs by saying, "The British have always done it," or else they insist that if you want to know what America is going to be doing a few years hence, just ask what Britain did a few years back.

So it is especially interesting to find our British cousins somewhat amused now a days by the controversy that has arisen in America over the propriety of a president of the United States offering for commercial sale, albeit not for private profit, the public papers of his administration. For it appears the British even had that very subject to deal with a few years ago and expressed themselves accordingly.

It seems that David Lloyd George, in August, 1922, while prime minister of England, contracted to write his memoirs for syndication in newspapers, and the consideration was said to be approximately $400,000.

Then came the furore in the British press and in parliament. Mr. Lloyd George was accused of capitalizing his official position for private gain. The prime minister was silent in the face of this criticism and then, after exactly three weeks—yes, the time was just three weeks—he came out with a statement that he would give the proceeds to charity.

The London Outlook said editorially: "It is honestly worth its money. It will contain information which no prime minister can use without the gravest impropriety. . . . The nation has . . . a right to demand that its chief servant, whose reputation is bound up with its own, shall not expose himself, at any rate while still in office, to the censure of every critic as a mere book maker."

The London Daily News said it feared the memoirs "must involve breaches of confidence which would endanger a vital cabinet tradition."

Later in the same year, November, 1922, Mr. Lloyd George left public office, and it was announced soon thereafter that he had contracted to write a series of articles for newspaper syndication along the same general lines, whereupon the British press opened up again on the subject. The London Morning Post, for instance, said:

"No previous prime minister of England had ever thought of exploiting the mysteries of his cabinet. . . . There are good reasons for not doing it and these reasons to the decent mind are so obvious that they would not need to be stated were they not being defied. . . ."

Property of State
A prime minister, like all cabinet ministers, but more than any other, is by his position placed in possession of intelligence not his own, of secrets and information which are the property of the state.

"It is bad enough when a prime minister's wife is allowed to exploit the little-tattle of Downing street, but when a prime minister himself engages in it the abuse becomes serious."

The London Morning Post said editorially: "It was led to believe that Mr. Lloyd George was putting up for sale, no matter whether for public charity or private gain, something which does not belong to him. . . . No other cabinet minister . . . would dream of putting his official experiences on the market."

The Westminster Gazette declared: "From the beginning there was strong and very proper objection to the man who was occupying the position of prime minister appearing as a writer upon events in which he had been intimately concerned solely by reason of his public position. It was of little consequence that financial objections were met by announcing that the money earned would be devoted to charity. The publication of such a book in such circumstances jarred upon the sense of propriety, for it was the circumstance that the writer was prime minister of Great Britain which gave the writing its high value in the eyes of those who bid for the serial rights."

The Pall Mall Gazette said: "Lloyd George's malign destiny once more has led him into that debatable land where public interests and private finance become undesirably entangled. When he contracted for a large sum to write his memoirs while in office, he took steps which jarred severely upon his countrymen's sense of the proprieties. . . .

STUDENT DECORATORS LEARN TRADE

The above picture was taken during a class period in interior decorating at the Appleton Vocational School. Perhaps you're worried over whether it is advisable or not of the board of vocational education to allow students to learn their trade on the school's walls, but fear not. The walls on which these students have just finished hanging paper are in one of three little rooms built in the school's basement especially for that purpose.

"The public ventilation of such issues is very unpleasant and this dispute is only one of many reasons why politicians should abandon their unseemly race to turn their public experience into copy. . . . Such a dispute . . . does not increase the credit of British statesmanship in other countries."

The London Herald ridiculed Lloyd George's plea that he was a poor man who had to write his memoirs to make a living after he lost the premiership. It pointed out that Andrew Carnegie had left him a life annuity of $10,000.

Thus ends the amazing parallel between American and British experience so far as press comment is concerned, but the incident proves that Anglo-Saxon peoples do not react very much differently toward the proprieties of an office of trust, and especially when it is the highest elective office within the gift of the people in a democracy. McKinley Pupils Hear Talk on Care of Teeth

Ninth grade pupils, directed by Miss Elizabeth Meyer, this week completed a description of Appleton, its industries and civic functions. The information was sent to a junior high school in Santa Cruz, Calif., where students are making a study of cities in the United States. Included in the description was a map of the city showing schools and parks in various colors, and an issue of the Post-Crescent.

10,000 Employers Behind in Filing Security Reports

State Office Urges Immediate Action on 1937 Information Returns

Out of 50,000 employers in the state of Wisconsin, 10,000 are delinquent in filing social security tax information returns for the two 6-month periods of 1937, according to O. A. La Budde, collector of internal revenue at Milwaukee.

"Until these information returns are filed, it will not be possible for the employees to receive credit for the tax withheld from their salaries and wages," Budde stated.

The employees cannot receive credit until their names and the amounts they have paid are sent to the social security board. La Budde urged that employers who did not fill out their information returns last year do so immediately.

Last year information returns were due each six months and tax returns each month. This year the two reports have been combined and will be submitted quarterly by employers. Information and tax returns for January, February, and March can be sent to the Milwaukee office any time during April.

The two 6-month information forms which were due during 1937 were known as SS-2 and SS-2a. Appleton employers who are delinquent in their 1937 information returns may call at the internal revenue office in the post office

Mayrand's Office to be Open Saturday Afternoon

R. G. Mayrand, deputy collector of internal revenue, said today his office in the post office building will be open up to 4:30 tomorrow afternoon for the convenience of those who want help in filling out their federal income tax blanks. The office opens at 8:30 in the morning.

Company Plans to Spend $21,000 on Phone Cable Here

Submits $4,100,000 State Program for Approval of Commission

Construction of underground and aerial cable extensions in Appleton costing $21,000 is planned by the Wisconsin Telephone company during 1938, according to its $4,100,000 construction program submitted to the public service commission for approval today.

F. N. Belanger, manager, said today that the construction work will be carried on in several parts of the city.

The Wisconsin company reported it expects to spend $2,338,000 on long distance construction, $338,000 on long distance equipment, and $633,000 on its general exchanges.

Proposed expenditures on local exchanges total $91,000. They include:

Ashtand $3,000; Baraboo $28,000; Eau Claire $4,000; Ellsworth $5,000; Fond du Lac $38,000; Ft. Atkinson $20,000; Green Bay $31,000; Hales Corners $5,000; Janesville $9,000; Kenosha $4,000; Lake Geneva $6,000; Madison $136,000; Manitowish $16,000; Menomonie $3,000; Merrill $5,000; Milwaukee $58,000; Neenah $10,000; Oshkosh $48,000; Peshigo $4,000; Racine $11,000; Reedsburg $4,000; Rhinelander $3,000; Stevens Point $10,000; Thiensville $4,000; Trout Lake $8,000; Wausau $4,000; and Wisconsin Rapids $3,000.

The commission's engineering department will study the proposed program and make a recommendation to the commission.

Urges Opposition to Use Of Butter Substitutes

Madison —(7)— Ralph Ammon, acting director of the state department of agriculture and markets, today urged Wisconsin's senators in Washington today urging opposition to use of butter substitutes in veterans hospitals and homes.

The messages to Senators Robert M. LaFollette and F. Ryan Duffy stated:

"Word has reached us that there is a move in Washington to permit use of butter substitutes in veterans hospitals and homes. We think such substitutes unfair to both veterans and the dairy industry and would appreciate any information available."

soon after the accident is the most important.

"I was satisfied that there was a basis for the belief that he was under the influence of liquor. That is one reason why I issued a first degree manslaughter warrant."

Duncan was arrested Wednesday night in a badly battered car shortly after three automobile accidents, in one of which Henry Schuette, 69, was killed. Witnesses said the car which struck Schuette as he stood beside his stalled machine on the W. Wisconsin avenue viaduct did not stop.

Duncan, police said, denied knowledge of striking anyone or being involved in an accident. He told the police he had only two glasses of beer.

Steffes said he awaited today a formal report from two police physicians, Drs. A. H. Cohen and N. A. Schluter, who examined Duncan Wednesday on his arrival at the jail.

DUNCAN IN HOSPITAL

Madison —(7)— Thomas M. Duncan, executive secretary to Governor LaFollette, who has been charged with first degree manslaughter as the result of an automobile fatality in Milwaukee, entered Wisconsin General hospital here last night. Hospital officials said Duncan was suffering from shock. He refused to see anyone.

After his arraignment in Milwaukee yesterday Duncan came to Madison by train in company of Dr. Stephen Cahana of Milwaukee, who is attending him at the hospital.

Dr. Cahana said his patient is suffering from a severe case of mental shock and will undergo complete examination.

Body of Farmer Found in Stable

Calumet County Authorities Investigating Death Of Henry Meyerhofer

The body of Henry Sebastian Meyerhofer, 40, route 3, Kaukauna, was found hanging from a rafter in the barn stable at his farm in the town of Harrison about 5:30 yesterday afternoon. Calumet county authorities were investigating today to determine whether an inquest will be called. The examining physician said Meyerhofer had been dead for a half hour or more before his body was discovered. He was reported to have been in ill health for some time.

Born in 1897 in the town of Harrison, he lived there all his life.

Survivors are the widow; the mother, Mrs. Mary Meyerhofer, Little Chute; three sons, Cletus, Glenn and Paul, at home; three brothers, William, Kaukauna; Ben and Frank, Little Chute; two sisters, Mrs. Henry Derfus, Hudson Falls, N. Y., and Mrs. Emory Schilling, Sherwood.

Funeral services will be held at 8:15 Monday morning at the residence and at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's church, Kaukauna, with the Rev. A. Roder in charge. Burial will be in Holy Angels cemetery, Darboy.

Asserts Witnesses At Henderson Trial Gave True Testimony

Madison —(7)— Leonard F. Schmitt, former district attorney of Lincoln county, presented affidavits to the state pardon board at a hearing today asserting three witnesses who testified against Dr. Raymond J. Henderson, of Tomahawk, Oct. 26, 1936, did not perjure themselves.

Schmitt said the statements were obtained from the same three women who signed affidavits admitting perjury when the doctor's application for a pardon came before the board several weeks ago.

Dr. Henderson was convicted of performing an illegal operation and was fined $300 and costs. He is seeking a pardon so that his license to practice will not be revoked.

Schmitt was district attorney of Lincoln county at the time Dr. Henderson was prosecuted and asked permission to appear before the board to answer charges of the doctor's counsel that the conviction was obtained on false testimony.

After listening to Schmitt's side of the controversy the board took the pardon application under advisement and will make its recommendation to Governor LaFollette later.

Movie to be Shown at Meeting of Engineers

An industrial motion picture in sound describing methods used in making electrical apparatus will be shown at an open meeting of the National Association of Power Engineers tonight at the Appleton Vocational school.

The film is being sponsored by the storage battery division of the Thomas A. Edison company of West Orange, N. J.

CAPTURE GROUNDHOG

Marshfield, Wis. —(7)— Add signs of spring: A live groundhog, caught in a brush pile by two local men, was exhibited here yesterday as evidence that the groundhog stayed out Feb. 2 to enjoy the spring weather. The captors plan to tame him for use as a weather prophet.

YOUNG COMMUNIST

Carl Ross (above), secretary of the Young Communists League, Inc., refused to tell the senate education committee whether he would "bear arms under the flag of the United States against the red flag of the Soviet Union." He said the question was "preposterous."

Ross, 24, said he was born in Hancock, Mich., graduated from high school at Superior, Wis., and now lives in New York city.

West Bloomfield Postmaster Dies

Herman Koehler, 77, Succumbs Unexpectedly At His Home

Weyauwega — Herman Koehler, 77, prominent resident of West Bloomfield, died unexpectedly about midnight. Mr. Koehler had been postmaster of West Bloomfield since 1892 and operated a general store. He organized the West Bloomfield cheese factory in 1890 and served as treasurer for 40 years. Mr. Koehler was town treasurer for a 10-year period and aided in the organization of the First National bank at Weyauwega and served as a director, president and chairman of the board of directors at various intervals. Mr. Koehler was also treasurer of the West Bloomfield Fire Mutual Insurance company.

Survivors are the widow; eight sons, Martin, Clarence, West Bloomfield; Arthur, Herbert, Walter, Weyauwega; Edward, Baraboo; Raymond, Alfred, Milwaukee; three daughters, Mrs. Ronald Schroeder, Milwaukee; Mrs. Walter Baehman, Hortonville; Mrs. Otto Tank, Weyauwega; one brother, John, Appleton, and 28 grandchildren.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1:30 Monday afternoon at the residence and at 2:15 at West Bloomfield Lutheran church by the Rev. C. H. Clausen. Burial will be at West Bloomfield cemetery.

Additional Tax On Liquor Stays In Revenue Bill

ment to tax imported pork and pork products about $5,000,000. Representative Doughton (D-N. C.) said, however, the treasury figured the added liquor tax would yield only $18,000,000. But Representative McCormack (D-Mass.) contended that on the basis of figures issued by Secretary Morgenthau, the loss from rejection of the "10" tax on closely-held corporations would be no more than $18,000,000.

Debate over the increase in the liquor tax, which now is $2 a gallon, brought appeals from some members for less hasty action.

"Without a study of this thing, we might do something that would increase bootlegging," said Representative Dingell (R-Mich.)

Whisky "Luxury"

Robertson, declaring the increase would not be passed along to the consumer, said:

"No one has to buy whisky unless he wants it. It's a luxury."

Thompson's pork proposal was approved 107 to 88. Other suggestions for taxes on foreign products went down like ten-pins after Representative Vinson (D-Ky.) had told the legislators the house floor was no place to write a tariff bill.

Finally the members grew impatient and then voted down a dozen amendments without even getting explanations of them.

Scrapped along with the import tax amendments were suggestions to put a 10 per cent tax on gross receipts of radio broadcasters, levy a one-cent a gallon tax on fuel oil, lower the beer tax from $5 to $2 a barrel and reinstate a tax on furs.

The major provisions left intact would modify the capital gains tax and establish a new corporate tax system.

The senate was proceeding slowly with the government reorganization bill, against which Senator Minor (D-Ind.) said opponents were conducting a "baby filibuster."

Police Distribute Posters on Safety

Distribution of new safety posters was started today. The posters which read "Be Alert—Walking—Driving" also carry a picture depicting an accident in which a small boy has been injured when struck by a car. Safety posters were issued for the first time last year by the department. They will be posted in public places and in the schools. The program is part of the department's campaign for safety.

Mercury Hits 43 This Afternoon

Fair Weather Will Continue Tonight, Tomorrow, Bureau Says

The thermometer hit its highest peak of the year today, registering 43 degrees at 1 o'clock this afternoon.

The fairest week of the winter will end even more pleasantly than it started, according to the Milwaukee weather bureau.

Bright, warm weather is forecast for tonight and tomorrow.

For the 24-hour period ending at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest temperature in the city was 39 and the lowest 25, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company plant.

New Orleans, with 80 degrees, and Park Falls, with 20, were the warmest and coldest cities in the nation yesterday, according to the Associated Press.

Paints Gloomy Picture Of Future in America

Milwaukee —(7)— A gloomy picture, depicting moral decay, economic breakdown, revolution, and international war for the United States, but holding forth, withal, a ray of optimism, was painted here last night by Dr. Will Durant, philosopher-writer, in a Town Hall forum talk before 1,000 persons.

After prophesying a war with Japan and probable fascist revolution in this country within 10 years, Durant said:

"America is not lost. I describe the darker aspects. Nevertheless we do face those problems."

"Our economic system," he said, "is based on mass production. Mass production requires mass consumption. Mass consumption requires a wide distribution of wealth. A wide distribution of wealth is made impossible by the concentration of wealth. The concentration of wealth is made possible by the inequality of men. That's why you have breakdowns."

CMTC Association Head Backs Defense Program

Milwaukee —(7)— Colonel A. Park, executive secretary of the Wisconsin Citizens' Military Training Camp association, uttered a strong endorsement yesterday of President Roosevelt's national defense plans in a talk before a Milwaukee County Republican Women's club group.

"If we had the kind of navy in 1916 that President Roosevelt proposes to build now, we probably never would have been drawn into the World war," said Colonel Park.

Change Location of 3rd Ward Voting Place

Voters in the first precinct of the Third ward will cast their ballots in the basement of Jefferson school at the primary election instead of at the kindergarten building on the school grounds, Carl J. Becher, city clerk, said today. The primary election will be held Tuesday.

Realty Transfers

The following real estate transfers were filed today at the office of A. L. Collar, Outagamie county register of deeds:

Albert N. Rousseau to Mathilda Moehring et al, a lot in the village of Shiocton.

Mathilda Moehring to Albert N. Rousseau et al, a parcel of land in the town of Bovina.

Charles Phillips to Renhold Kasischeke, a lot in the First ward, Kaukauna.

Josephine Kavanaugh to Genevieve Koepke, a parcel of land in the Third ward Appleton.

with at least two of them holding a possibility of additional criminal action.

These two were in charge of Gregory F. Noonan, assistant United States attorney, and Ambrose V. McCall, the state attorney general's assistant.

Noonan was ordered into the case by Brian McMahon, assistant United States attorney general, with instructions to check for evidence of federal law violation.

McCall had started an inquiry under the state securities act on Wednesday, the day after the Whitney firm had announced inability to meet its obligations.

Present Evidence

In addition, the stock exchange, the securities and exchange commission and Irwin Kurtz, referee in bankruptcy, were looking into the rapidly-expanding ramifications of the case.

Most of the testimony thus far made public came from the McCall investigation. Witnesses there testified that Whitney:

Did not tell his partner, Edwin D. Morgan, Jr., until last Sunday that bankruptcy threatened their firm.

Transferred to the firm a personal debt on an old note by "retaining" J. P. Morgan company partners, and having a present face value of $474,000.

Took into his personal custody from the firm's custody $798,376 of securities, a large portion belonging to customers.

Transferred to his personal custody $125,000 of securities belonging to the exclusive New York Yacht club, of which he had been treasurer, without notice to the club.

Reach Settlement in Dispute Over Lot Line

Settlement of a dispute regarding a lot line between property owned by Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph C. Breitling, 315 N. Division street, and Mr. and Mrs. William Kranzsch, 319 N. Division street, was reached before a jury was selected in municipal court yesterday afternoon. Action was started by Mr. and Mrs. Breitling and a strip of land 18 inches wide was involved in the dispute. According to terms of the settlement the lot line was established at the center of the strip of land.

State Experts Discuss Plant, Animal Diseases At Institute for Farmers

New London—Prevalent plant and animal diseases were discussed by specialists for farmers of New London and vicinity at an all-day farm institute program at Washington High school yesterday.

Dr. B. A. Beach, veterinarian, and R. E. Vaughn, plant disease specialist, led the discussions. Both are from the College of Agriculture at Madison. George Massey, Waupaca county agent, conducted the meeting and explained the 1938 soil conservation program.

Attendance at the sessions varied throughout the day from about 100 to 300. About 200 were served a free lunch at the Veterans of Foreign Wars hall at noon by the New London Chamber of Commerce. A small group of women accompanied their husbands and visited the home economics classes at the high school during the day.

Poultry Diseases
Tuberculosis and paralysis in chickens and black head in turkeys was treated by Dr. Beach in his morning talk while he discussed Bang's disease in the afternoon.

Black head is seldom found in chickens, the speaker explained, but they are latent carriers of the disease. Turkeys are very susceptible and should be kept isolated from all chickens, even keeping them off grounds ranged by chickens, Dr. Beach advised. Tuberculosis in poultry is a chronic disease and is slow in developing, seldom being found in birds under a year old.

Over production of poultry must be guarded against to prevent a flock from "laying itself to death," Dr. Beach informed. Study has shown that flocks with a 50 per cent laying average earn the most money. When that point is reached in production the feeding of whole grain should supplant the mash ration, he said.

Greatest percentage of chick losses are blamed to too high temperatures in the brooder house.

Explains Testing
Discussing all the angles of Bang's disease, Dr. Beach laid particular stress on the eradication and control of the disease. He explained the mass testing and eradication projects of the state and advised farmers to watch their herds closely by as much individual testing as possible in event a vote is taken for state aid in this section.

The mass testing is being conducted by the state in eight counties. He emphasized the importance of sanitation and watchfulness in a program of control.

The yellow dwarf in potatoes was discussed by R. E. Vaughn at the morning session, and because of the recent epidemic of the disease in this section the speaker advised farmers to secure seed from the northern section of the state which is relatively disease free. Yellow dwarf stunts the growth of the plant and discolors the leaves, leaving empty hills. Its growth seems to be stimulated in hot and dry weather and study shows it to be carried by the clover leafhopper.

Mr. Vaughn explained research and experiments being carried on at the University of Wisconsin's experimental stations on the many plant diseases and advised farmers to keep in constant touch with the county agent to secure information on latest treatments as they are evolved.

Talks On Grain
Smut disease in grain was covered by Vaughn at the afternoon session. He recalled the epidemic of grain rust which was brought to this section by the high winds last year and spent much of his discussion on the treatment of seed grain.

He explained a new improved "Ceresan" product for dry dust treatment of seed grain and recommended the disinfectant over the old formaldehyde treatment. The product kills the growth of smut inside the covered types, he said, without injuring the germination of the kernel.

A model of a wooden device for mixing the grain with the treatment powder was demonstrated. Plans for such a device will be supplied by the county agent. L. M. Warner, high school instructor, announced the agricultural students planned to build one and that it would be available for use to anyone.

Few changes are apparent in the 1938 agricultural conservation program over that of last year as explained by George Massey, county agent.

Special potato allotments will be made this year based on acreage of the last three years. A general increase in benefit payments will amount to $14 on former payments ranging from $60 to $185, with increases from 40 cents to $13.90 on payments from $1 to $60, proportionately.

Assignment of probable payments for advance loans will be permitted this year.

Holstein Herd Is High in Month's Milk Production

Averages 39.5 Pounds of Butterfat in Improvement Association

Averaging 39.5 pounds of butterfat the Holstein herd of John Frank led production in the Outagamie County Dairy Improvement Herd association for February. The John Van Asten Holstein herd averaged 38.8 pounds of fat to place second.

With an average of 35 pounds of fat, the Frank Bacheller Holstein herd was third, while the William Krause mixed Holstein and Swiss herd was fourth with an average of 31.8 pounds of fat. Fifth place went to the Ray Newhouse Holstein herd with an average of 30.3 pounds of fat.

First place in individual production was taken by a cow owned by Ray Newhouse which produced 1,803 pounds of milk containing 86.5 pounds of butterfat. Second and third places went to cows owned by Walter Romensko. They produced 1,607 pounds of milk containing 69.1 pounds of fat and 1,691 pounds of butter containing 60.9 pounds of fat. A William Krause cow was fourth with 1,439 pounds of milk containing 60.4 pounds of butterfat. Fifth was a John Van Asten cow which showed 1,341 pounds of milk containing 59 pounds of fat.

Following are owners and the number of cows producing 40 or more pounds of butterfat for the month: John Coenen 4, John Van Asten 7, Chester A. Walker 1, Edward Van Dyke 1, Walter Romensko 4, Ray Newhouse 7, William Krause 7, Edward Vogel 1, Maurice Powers 2, Alfred Moehring 1, Mike Mack 2, Henry Smith 2, Bernard Mares 4, Frank Bacheller 8, Bert Zobel 1, Fred Bunkelman 1, Alfred Tiedin 4, Henry Oudenhoven 4, Nick Palitzer 4, Patrick Garvey 2, Howard Perker 5, John Frank 6 and George Bohl 5.

Planting Intentions
Now Being Reported
By Farmers in State

Changes in the acreages of Wisconsin's crops as compared with a year ago soon will be announced by the crop reporting service of the state and federal departments of agriculture, according to word received by R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agent.

During the last week a large number of county and other farmers in the state have been figuring out what crops they intend to plant this spring and whether they will make changes in acreages as compared with last year.

Thousands of intentions-to-plant cards have been mailed to the farmers of the state by the crop reporting service. Upon these cards the farmers are asked to report the acreages of the principal crops raised on their farms last year and to indicate what they intend to plant this year.

The intentions-to-plant survey started just before the United States entered the World war. The war department at Washington was anxious to know what the prospects were going to be for food supplies in the nation, and the division of crop and livestock estimates made a survey of what the farmers intended to raise that year.

Results of this survey were turned over to the war department and were kept confidential. However, when the fall harvest was made, the crop reporting board found that there was a close relationship between what the farmers intended to plant early in the spring and the acres harvested the next fall.

4-H Club Leaders to Draw Up 1938 Program

Waupaca—County 4-H club leaders will hold their annual meeting at the courthouse next Tuesday, according to George Massey, county agent. Committee meetings will be held during the afternoon with the general meeting at 7:30 in the evening. V. V. Varney and Miss Grace Rowntree of the state 4-H club department will be present at the meeting to assist in drawing up the 1938 program.

Last year there were 473 youths in the 31 county 4-H clubs. The enrollment this year is expected to exceed that number.

FARMERS AT INSTITUTE LINE UP FOR LUNCH

New London—A free lunch, cafeteria style, is always a highlight of the program when New London merchants and business men entertain surrounding farmers. The Farm Institute yesterday was no exception. Shown in line to get their hot dogs, sandwiches, cookies and coffee are John Fitzgerald, Jack Thoma and son Herbert, from Manawa, Andy Young, and Alfred Pomrening of Readfield. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Farmers Lose if Consumer's Buying Power Decreases

Cash Income Follows Urban Payrolls, Economists Report

Farm economists at the state university report in a bulletin received by R. C. Swanson, county agent, that although in the past farmers have sold about the same quantities of farm products in years when factory pay rolls were small as in years when factory pay rolls were large, they did so at much lower prices.

Farmers prosper only when their consumers have paying power and when the industrial worker's income falls off he has less money to spend for farm products.

"The years 1929 and 1933 were years of high and of low consumer paying power," Wisconsin economists point out. "During 1929 wages and salaries received 51 billion dollars; during 1933 only 29 billion dollars."

"Dairy farmers offered more creamery butter to consumers in 1933 than 1929—1,763 million pounds in 1933; 1,597 million pounds in 1929. In order to sell this butter to consumers with reduced paying power, the farmer accepted a lower price. The average wholesale price of 92 score butter at Chicago was 21 cents in 1933 as compared with 44 cents in 1929."

"There are over six million farmers producing farm products, and the farmer and his family do most of the farm work. For these reasons farm production continues even when prices fall. In contrast, many industrial products are produced by only a few large organizations. The work is done by wage earners whose wages can be saved when the plant is not operating, or only operated at partial capacity.

"Recent national farm programs have attempted to copy industry by making it possible for parts of agriculture to adjust production to changes in demand. Agriculture might gain more by a program that would assure continuous industrial production, if such a program could be devised and adopted."

Allotments of State Aid for Fairs This Year Set by Board

Classification of fairs and allotments of state aid for 1938 were made at a meeting of the board of directors of the Wisconsin Association of Fairs at Baraboo last week. Payment of these allotments is contingent upon courts finding the payment of such items to be constitutional.

Limited to $2,000 state aid in Class 3 are fairs held at Seymour, Waubesa, Lodi, Union Grove, Janesville, Sturgeon Bay and Mauston.

Included in Class 5, where state aid is limited to $1,600, is Chilton. The maximum state aid in Class 6 will be $1,300 for each fair. In this class is Weyauwega.

Farmers Applying For Soil Payments

Schedule Meetings in Waupaca County for Completing Applications

Waupaca—Applications for payment of the 1937 Agricultural Conservation program for approximately half of the Waupaca county farmers have been received at the office of George Massey, county agent. After applications have been signed, approximately four weeks will be needed before checks can be issued.

Farm operators and owners whose applications have been received will be notified at an early date to attend one of a series of meetings that have been arranged to complete the applications for payment.

Following is the schedule of meetings: Waupaca city hall, Monday, 8:30 a. m. to 4:40 p. m.; Clintonville city hall, Tuesday, 8:30 a. m. to 4:30 p. m.; Big Falls village hall, Wednesday, 8:30 to 12

Four Dairy Cows Perish

On Farm in Maple Creek

Maple Creek—Mrs. Joe Bessette lost four dairy cows from her herd

Two Cow Testing Groups Will Meet Tuesday at Chilton

Forest Junction—Members of the two cow testing associations of Calumet county organized under the auspices of the Calumet County Holstein-Friesian Breeders' association, will meet at Chilton next Tuesday evening, according to Leonard Seybold, dairy farmer on route 1, Forest Junction, who is secretary of the county organization.

The meeting will be held for the purpose of renewing the testing groups for another year, with the possible organization of a third group for dairymen who could not be accommodated in the other two. A. L. Kramer, Madison, who is in charge of dairy herd improvement work over the state, will be at the meeting. Another meeting of county dairymen will be held at Chilton on March 28 at which Robert Geiger, Minneapolis, national Holstein fieldman, will speak, according to Mr. Seybold.

This week. The cattle came in contact with some arsenate of lead which had been left in the barn since last season and mixed with the food the animals ate. Another cow is not expected to recover.

There are more than 500 hotels in New York City. In Marseilles, France, which is some 2,000 years older, there are today more than 1,000.

DEFENDANTS AND A FREE PRESS

Judge Reis at Madison ventured some opinions concerning the privilege of newspapers to publish conclusions concerning those accused of crime.

The occasion for the jurist's ruling was upon a motion by an accused person to change his place of trial and take him out of Dane county because the newspapers there "had inflamed the public against him."

Without all the affidavits and copies of the papers it would be hazardous to risk an opinion concerning this particular accused person's complaint. But observation in relation to newspaper comment in such cases is in point.

A newspaper cannot avoid publishing facts in important cases. It can avoid being partisan in such publication or attempting to convict a man prior to his trial.

The number of times that a newspaper has attempted to inflame the public against an accused person is so small as to be negligible. The number of times an accused person has made such an accusation in order to accomplish a purpose in mind is quite another thing.

A judge on the bench, reading a newspaper account, can tell very quickly whether that paper was actuated by some sinister purpose, was engaged in an effort to "get" the accused, or whether its purpose was merely the routine task of getting the facts to the people.

In the realm of comment a newspaper should never assume a man guilty or charge him with guilt in the face of his denial, but it may appropriately discuss undisputed facts that have been brought forth to the public gaze and just as properly deal with the quantity of evidence, the dependability of its source, and therefore the duty of the public officers to bring the case to trial for submission before those tribunals which are designated for the purpose of administering justice.

There may have been a time when a juror was influenced by a mistaken newspaper story or a one-sided statement. But our jurors today are a canny lot with a pedigree that seems to reach back to Missouri. The idea that if they read a mistaken or even a distorted account of the case in a newspaper they thereby became incompetent as jurors is an extreme and unjustifiable position to take. Jurors generally recognize the necessity of evidence, are very slow to take away from a man his liberty, and show particular taste in classifying and weighing evidence.

As a matter of pure tactics in a trial the defendant who cannot turn a newspaper attack into a boomerang is both slow-witted and flatfooted. The resentment the jurors would evidence at any attempt by any newspaper to supplant them in their duties or to whisk someone off so merrily to prison would blow any prosecution into bits, and might be the decisive factor in getting a guilty man out of his cage.

Nevertheless the obligation of the press, particularly in cases involving great public interest or excitement, is a delicate one and must be handled, as it is in most cases, with more purpose than that of being fair in the presentment of ascertainable facts.

EVERY PROFESSIONAL CRIMINAL WILL BE INTERESTED

An addressing service system from New York is circularizing the country seeking to sell the list of every person in it with an income of $15,000 per annum. It sets out a specimen sheet showing the manner and style of compilations. Thus it gives the name of the company, the name of each individual, the position or office held by that individual, the address, and the precise income.

For the purpose of selling these lists the System says, "This list is ideal for your firm to obtain for circularizing" and states as an after-thought that "We are specialists in compiling mailing lists of a unique nature."

It is possible that some of these lists will be sold to houses that consider themselves legitimate. But it is as certain as doom that every crooked house in the country, every kidnaper and extortioner, every blackmailer and resident of Albatraz, will want a copy and will get one if he has the price.

It may be suggested, and rather fairly so, that the next time our Federal grand juries indict for some particularly atrocious or heinous crime they might include as defendants those members of Congress who voted for the publicity of these incomes—an act which might have been justified in some men's minds until experience over a period of years demonstrated beyond the possibility of decent argument that such publicity has not revealed one virtue but has brought to the surface like a suppurating sore every bit of matter of a vile nature beneath the body politic.

SHORTER HOURS

There may be such a thing as carrying a good principle too far. Senator Norris of Nebraska, for instance, expressing his one wish on his 76th birthday, says:

"Before we ever get recovery, we've got to shorten the hours of labor, and the only way to do that is by legislation."

Now, as all well-informed people know, there was a time when the hours of labor were far too long. It is not many years since steel dropped its twelve-hour shifts. In industry, store and office, millions of people used to have an unreasonably long working day.

But is this true today? Look around and see. The great depression brought the most drastic shortening of hours, for wage workers and also for salary workers, that has ever been seen. There was a moderate rise in hours again as business improved, but not enough to impose hardship on many workers. With the recent recession, average hours have probably fallen lower than before, as a means of passing the work around.

The result is that the working day of most wage-earners is now too short rather than too long—too short to produce enough to give them a decent income.

It is well to pass the work around in this way, in a time of depression, but it is wise now to write into the national law, or establish in practice as a lasting principle, any general "shortening of the hours of labor?" We need, and labor mostly needs, longer hours than it has now, in order to produce more wealth for everybody.

It can probably be assumed, from Senator Norris's well known liberal views, that this is what he himself really wants. But it is well to make the principle clear and keep it clear. The desirable thing today and hereafter is not a shorter working day for labor in general, but merely a "ceiling" that will prevent unduly long hours for women and children and make the normal men's working day perhaps a maximum of eight hours.

GRADED HOUSING

The Dutch are a practical people. The American Institute of Architects says Holland is the only country that has met squarely the "separate problems created by the undesirable, the most needy and the least responsible dwellers in the old slums." Slum clearance projects in the Netherlands provided for that group as well as for the aged, for single men and women, and so on.

The undesirables and the drunkards, trouble-makers and mentally backward families whose members are often public charges in asylums or other institutions, with little opportunity to improve their status. The housing provided for them in open areas on the outskirts of Amsterdam consists of one-story apartments of the simplest type, but with adequate sanitary provisions. There are also separate bath houses, laundries, day nurseries for children and community club rooms. In the club rooms women are taught simple sewing and boys and girls learn useful handicrafts. These apartments provide for 187 families. Their social value is shown by the fact that, since 1932, 143 families have graduated from them to better quarters in normal neighborhoods.

Aged persons on small pensions have one-story cottages where light house-keeping and modest gardening are possible. The average worker's family and the very poor are housed in four-story apartment groups. No family or individual is bound forever to his present dwelling, but no one is barred from a comfortable and adequate home because of slim income.

Perhaps such a plan is not workable in this country, but the social thinking underlying it is well worth our study.

Opinions Of Others

MANUFACTURER HITLER

Opening the Berlin auto show, Reichsfuehrer Hitler predicted Germany soon will be building "the cheapest car in the world." And, judged by other reports from that country, it should be just that, though not precisely, in the sense of the Reichsfuehrer's prediction.

Germany is straining to rearm and at the same time, for reasons no less military, is trying to make herself independent of the rest of the world as regards essential raw materials. Her whole economic life is being subordinated to these two ends, with results that, as reported, are not too good. These reports—telling of costly and often futile experiments with "ersatz" materials of the sacrifice of needed repairs and replacements of capital goods in many non-arms industries and of a consequent general loss of efficiency—recently have been confirmed officially, after a fashion. That is, conditions of the sort just named seemed clearly reflected in the annual accounting by the State Railways for 1937.

It was disclosed that serviceable rolling stock declined, even while traffic immensely increased. Rail replacements were almost 50 per cent behind schedule and to the extent of fully one-half were being made with re-conditioned, instead of new rails. Steel was being substituted where copper should go in locomotive boilers and other alloys were being used for babbitt metal in bearings. Service standards fell off remarkably and injuries and deaths due to accidents tripled as compared with 1936.

That a country so bedeviled by the demands of militarism can produce an automobile that is both "cheap" and good is simply beyond the realm of possibility. It is a tragedy to see any country thus working to debar itself—whatever the cause or whoever's the blame—from the opportunity to compete in the world's markets.

Gold production in the Union of South Africa during the last year amounted to 11,740,000 ounces, a new record.

THE AUDACITY OF CONGRESS in raising back and voting down a pet Roosevelt tax measure is downright refreshing. . . . even if the gesture proves to have no subsequent backbone and the boss cracks the boys back into their yes-men classification, it was still some fun, hey kid, to see the representatives behaving badly in the days when they used to exercise their rights as law-makers and before they had delegated their powers to one man . . . in the meantime, it has not been satisfactorily explained just how much further harm the tax in question on closely held corporations is likely to do for business and just how much of a persecution against New Deal enemies this involves . . . yet, to see congress show a little spunk is indeed a welcome sight . . .

There is much talk about the acquisition of the two Pacific islands by the United States and the claim of Great Britain over these two spots of land.

Undoubtedly a solution whereby both nations will use the land will be reached.

I also note that ships in the U. S. navy will be permitted to use the British drydocks at Singapore.

Another cooperative venture.

Maybe we haven't any alliance with Great Britain (although I have no particular objections to the right kind of one), but it will be pretty hard to convince any other nation that such an alliance does not exist.

Don't talk too much about the approaching baseball season and the time for planting gardens. Don't spend too much time swinging the golf clubs or repairing the fishing tackle.

Sure as you do, the spring blizzard will be on us in great style.

It is permissible, however, to sneak a few seed catalogs into your reading program, although you shouldn't overdo this either. I have heard that amateur gardeners get positively rabid after spending a few hours poring over seed catalogs.

A Verse for Today

THE PICTURE ON THE EASEL

The picture on the easel in days of long ago stood in the little parlor, and caught the warning glow Of lamplight and base-burner . . . It was my Granddad's face That gave that walnut easel such dignity and grace.

It stood beside the whatnot, and drew our childish gaze Away from shells and knick-knacks that filled us with amazement! It was a crayon portrait, enlarged and framed in gold, And often baby fingers left marks there, small, but bold.

Upon the ingrain carpet, where huge red roses twined With bright green leaves, the easel loomed proudly . . . We designed A wreath to hang upon it the day a somber hack Took us to Granddad's deathbed, and brought us sadly back.

The picture on the easel is in an attic room. There's dust upon its glory, but shining through the gloom It seems just like a symbol of humble days and wise, And I grow strong by looking into Granddad's brave old eyes.

SILLY SCIENCE

Some one sends a clipping which might be part of a comic radio script but must be taken seriously as it is labelled "MEDICINE" at the top and "Science News" at the bottom, so it is no laughing matter. The news, heaven help us, tells the simple reader—

"The reason why pneumonia is especially likely to follow exposure to cold, ether anesthesia and alcohol indulgence or overindulgence."

The qualifying or moderating words "or overindulgence" were probably necessary to get the copy by the censor.

"These conditions interfere with the normal action of the epiglottis and the vocal folds in the throat, structures which ordinarily act like curtains, closing over the trachea at the slightest irritation. Since the trachea or windpipe is the passage from the throat to the lungs it is obvious that failure of these protective curtains would leave the passage to the bronchi and lungs open to pneumonia germs in the air."

All this Alice-in-Wonderland stuff is ascribed to two research workers in the University of Michigan, whose names it is unnecessary to mention here.

This Michigan discovery that the epiglottis closes over the entrance to the windpipe at the slightest irritation—the simple minded reader is left to assume that of course pneumonia germs in the air would be irritating—will come as a shock to the physiologists. All along the physiologists have taken it for granted that when the trapdoor or epiglottis closes over the entrance to the trachea or windpipe no air can enter. But what do physiologists know about "resistance" anyway?

Far be it from me to intimate that the eminent students who carried out this bit of "research" would deliberately poke fun at the dumb public, but just the same I think this "report" would make a good one for a comedian's book: a bit subtle, perhaps, but the point of the joke could be teased out all right. First the pneumatic germs floating in the air, then the trapdoor closing so they can't float right on thru to the lungs; finally, alas, some failure in the closing of the trapdoor so that a little air still gets thru with a pair of germs—second germs—and there you are.

The moral—if there are morals in modern "science" is plain: If you suspect pneumonia germs are floating about, close your trap.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Filling Artificial Teeth

I have to have five front teeth extracted. How long must I wait before the false teeth on a bridge can be set in. (Mrs. I. E.)

Answers—Good dentists today fit plates or bridges and have the patient wearing them comfortably within a week or less after extraction.

Optimal

Kindly let me know the meaning of "optimal" as where you speak of an "optimal" vitamin ration. Why not use words we all know? (R. C.)

Answer—Optimal refers to optimum, the most favorable quantity or condition. Trouble is, I don't know what words we all know. I'll be grateful if you can suggest a better or simpler word to use instead of optimal.

Cooking Vitamins
Would heating or cooking vitamin D milk destroy the vitamin D? (M. K.)

Answer—Heating or cooking destroys very little of the vitamin D. It is quite stable.

Your Birthday

"PISCES"

If March 12 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m., from 1:30 to 3:30 p. m., and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:30 to 9:30 a. m., from 9:30 to 7:30 p. m., and from 9:30 to 11:30 p. m.

Be careful that subconsciously you do not say or write something that you will deeply regret. You may avoid committing a serious mistake against a social convention if you refrain from day-dreaming, as well as making it a point to concentrate intently on anything you are putting down in black and white. "Wise-cracking" is likely to be a dangerous pastime this day, so it will be good judgment not to indulge in it. The nerves probably will give many a person a vague feeling that something unpleasant is going to happen. False pretensions are apt also to be among today's trouble-makers, particularly if they are resorted to for the purpose of impressing other people. Married and engaged couples, as well as those whose are entertaining serious matrimonial hopes, must avoid nagging or serious fault-finding if they expect this day to be thoroughly enjoyable.

If a woman and March 12 is your birthday, your life should be very interesting, filled with success and happiness. Pleasure loving you probably will take a very active part in formulating plans for various social activities. You, perhaps, have a "hair-triggered" temper, one that explodes violently and then, just as quickly is controlled, and you are ready to forgive anyone who has been the cause of your anger. You are not likely to harbor grudges or any feeling of envy. Among the fields of endeavor in which you ought to do exceptionally well are the literary, educational, artistic, musical or theatrical. If you have not immediately plunged into marriage, your chances for connubial felicity are good.

The child born on March 12, is apt to be of a studious disposition, but thoroughly capable of taking an interest in the sports and pleasures of the normal youngster. Parents can find satisfaction in the fact that there are few failures in life among the children of Pisces who celebrate this day as their birth anniversary.

If a man and March 12 is your natal day, your home and business ethics are most likely above reproach. High ideals and an exceptional amount of ambition ought to inspire you to, do in a big way whatever you undertake. Through lecturing, preaching, singing, acting, selling or practicing medicine or law distinction and influence may be yours.

Successful People Born on March 12:

Seen And Heard In New York

By GEORGE TUCKER

New York — It may be I am seeking too far after eventualities in bringing up certain probabilities in the theater, yet I am haunted by a desire to know what Lynn Fontanne would do if she misplaced her timble in "Amphitryon 28."

Probably she would manage well enough, but none the less there exists the possibility of at least one circumstance that would tax even her nimble wits. I mean that scene where Alfred Lunt comes in with a hole in his sock.

Every night and sometimes in the afternoon she makes him take it off and gives it the benefit of needle and thread. This homey chore is accompanied by a line of appropriate chatter, and in the end Alfred gets his sock back.

But suppose some night there should be no thimble. Suppose by mischance she should plump the needle into her finger. What I want to know is, would Miss Fontanne the actress go right on talking according to script or would Lynn the woman yell "Ouch!" and thrust the digit into her mouth? It's an interesting point.

"Dear George—Was just passing your typewriter and being a nosy fellow, I read what you had written just above. I can tell you exactly what she would do, being that I saw something very similar actually happen to her. It was several years ago when I was managing the Theatre Guild comedy, "Caprice," in which Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne starred.

"It happened in Chicago on our tour of this country before we took the play to London for its long run there. On our opening night I was standing in the back of the theater engaged in 'counting house' during a scene on the stage between Miss Fontanne and Leonard Loan. Suddenly, to my horror, Miss Fontanne's panties dropped over her shoes, the elastic having broken.

"Without faltering a word of her dialogue, she quietly kicked the silken undergarment from her feet under a nearby divan, and so quickly and smoothly did she do the trick that not a dozen people in the audience saw what had happened. She went on with her performance without faltering a syllable and attending to what a great actress Miss Fontanne is under any circumstance.

"Incidentally, 'Caprice' is the play that I fruitlessly tried to persuade Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne not to produce. It was, I argued, as we rehearsed in Philadelphia, a play without the slightest chance of making a penny. I still argued this after we had opened to unanimous laudatory reviews on Broadway, and I continued arguing the point. My wails of fear for the success of the play grew weaker and weaker as I added up the box office statements each night, and the play turned out to be one of the richest hits in Broadway history—Mark Barron."

Geo. Mark—thanks!

France honors its gastronomic heroes and heroines. In a village near Grasse is a monument to the inventor of Peach Melba: the discoverer of Camembert has a statue at Vimoutiers; while Madame Poulard, the famous omelette maker, is enshrined at Mont St. Michel.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—You would hardly recognize the coal commission these days. It has had a reformation, a rejuvenation.

People around here a few short weeks ago were saying, "Oh, my goodness, have you heard the latest about the coal commission?"

But all that now appears to be changed, at least for the nonce.

The coal commission is the body created by the Guffey coal act. It is supposed to open the way for coal producers, dealers and consumers to agree on some part of a systemized mining, selling and handling program that would put the ailing soft coal industry back on its feet.

The first Guffey coal act was born in 1935 under threat of a coal strike. It died at the hands of the Supreme Court. The second act, much like the first but modestly hopeful of escaping the court axe, came into being something over a year ago.

The essence of its performance is this: The country, for administrative purposes, is divided into districts. Each district is allocated a certain production quota and the local producers form a committee in conjunction with representatives of labor and the public. This committee apportions the quota among the mines.

The national commission, in turn, holds hearings, determines fair and acceptable prices for the hundred and one classes of coal and thus attempts to bring order out of chaos.

Deficit Grew

For months the commission was a house divided against itself. Its seven members split four and three and the four ruled while the three protested. They scrapped over ink-wells, over salaries of each other's private secretaries and over patronage. Before long, it seemed, everybody was trying to pacify everybody else by creating jobs wholesale.

In July, the beginning of this fiscal year, the commission ended the month with a surplus, but by October, so rapid was the expansion, this had been converted into an $11,000 deficit. Each month the deficit grew until it reached a high of $76,000 for January.

Meantime a mild winter brought a crisis in the coal business. Dealers began bidding desperately for business. The city of Cleveland bought coal for 74 cents a ton.

Fact-finding hearings proceeded, but not fast enough to save the commission from criticism, both from coal producers and administration sources. In a frantic effort to get ahead, the commission on Dec. 1 announced a coal price schedule to go into effect Dec. 16.

Split Healed

Hard-pressed railroads, largest coal buyers, protested they had been badly treated in the price schedule and went to court. A federal court threw out part of the price schedule early in February on the grounds the commission in its December haste had failed to allow hearings on the price schedule. So the commission repealed the whole schedule late in February to start over.

Meantime, in January, the four-to-three schism had healed. The commission began putting its own house in order by shaking off some of its patronage fat. It had hit a top enrollment of 1,200 employees. About 150 have been dropped and more are going.

The January deficit was cut by $15,000 in February. Members hope to cut it in half in March and end the fiscal year with a mild balance.

A new price schedule is being worked out and hearings will be held to suit orders of the court.

34 Rural School Students Win in Poster Contest

First Place Ribbons Go to Pupils at 15 Schools in County

Kaukauna—Gold ribbons representing first place awards were given to 34 pupils from 15 Outagamie county rural schools yesterday in the conservation poster contest sponsored by the Conservation club of Outagamie Rural Normal school. Second place posters received blue ribbons and third place entries red ribbons. A score of 90 had to be achieved to merit a first place rating.

Contributions to the contest, begun about six weeks ago, numbered 218, with 27 county schools entered. Names of the students who sent in posters awarded gold ribbons, their school, and the teacher in charge are as follows:

The Winners
William Kimball, North Osborn, Lucille Bloy, Marcella Lambert, Delores Lambert, County Line, Mildred Pautz, Thomas Vanderhoof, Terry McLaughlin, Ruth Koglin, Dale Andrews, Jr., Outagamie Rural Normal grade school, Ruth McAlister and Margaret Phillips, McAlister, Antepenko, Ruth Samson, Pine Grove, Celia Schuster.

Class Will Study Social Security

First Session of Series to Be Held at Vocational School March 17

Kaukauna—The first of a series of classes to be held in the council rooms of the municipal building dealing with the Social Security act and federal old age insurance will start on Thursday, March 17, William T. Sullivan, director of the Kaukauna Vocational school, announced yesterday.

The series will be conducted by Les J. Myers, of the federal social security board located at Green Bay, and will be held on successive Thursday evenings.

Special attention will be given in the classes to Titles I and II of the Social Security act. Title II covers the Federal operated bureau of old age insurance, and it is under this provision that more than 37 million social security account numbers have been released through which under regulations monthly payments will be made to eligible persons after Jan. 1, 1942. There are many questions involved concerning employers and employees, and inasmuch as such claims are now one of the more important functions of the field offices of the social security board, special stress will be laid on this feature.

The forum will be conducted in such a manner that a general background of the economic situation in the United States at the time of the passage of the act will be discussed in detail, followed by an open discussion.

The meetings will begin promptly at 7:30. Two sessions are now contemplated, with four or five possible if enough interest is shown. No fee will be charged.

Community Recreation Program Results in Better Citizenry, Clubwomen Told

A COMMUNITY THAT CONCERNS ITSELF with the leisure of its people will have a happier citizenry and as a result a better citizenry, Miss Dorothy Enderis, head of the recreational department of the Milwaukee public schools, in a talk on "Playgrounds" before Appleton Federated Woman's club and guests Thursday afternoon at the club house.

Stating that recreational workers argue playgrounds largely from a crime prevention standpoint, Miss Enderis pointed out the dollar and cent saving has been proved by national surveys which show that people go wrong during their leisure hours, not during their working hours. She went on to explain that the money spent in providing playgrounds in any community will be repaid many times over in saving court expenses and institutional care for those young people who might be led astray without proper recreational facilities and good use of leisure time.

Miss Enderis said that the old idea about play as something to keep children amused, and that the sooner they grew out of it the better, is being replaced by the realization that play is a human instinct which cannot be blotted out but which can be sadly perverted. Boys and girls will throw things, climb, run and play, she continued, and whether they do these things legitimately or not is up to the people of their communities.

The speaker told of the opening of a playground in a poor district in Milwaukee where, on the first night of its operation a policeman warned the leaders that they probably would encounter trouble with the people there. Six weeks later, she said, the same policeman came back and told the leaders that he had had no complaints during the entire six weeks period.

The best testimonials for the value of playgrounds in Milwaukee come from policemen and judges, Miss Enderis stated.

Other values, in addition to that of crime prevention, were discussed by the speaker who mentioned safety as a new argument in favor of playgrounds. There are values, too, she said, from play rightly conducted, for a playing child is a working child and it will carry habits of play over into its work life. She mentioned concentration and memory, judgment and strategy as mental values, and learning to observe rules, take defeat bravely and victory graciously, have respect for property rights, and exercise self control as spiritual and moral values.

Social Values
The social values of play rightly conducted are contained in the fact that play is democratizing, that team play means forgetting self for the sake of the whole and learning to be a good co-worker which is almost more important for the rank and file than fostering leadership, and that it teaches consideration for others.

Character is habit, formed by doing a thing over and over again, Miss Enderis pointed out, and the only way to teach it is by bringing a child up against a situation in which he must choose to be honest or dishonest.

The speaker said that it would be as fallacious to have a playground without leadership as it would be to have a school without a teacher. Recreation is education, she added, stating that the school board of a community ought to provide summer activity as well as a recreational program for people beyond school age, for it must educate people not only for work but for play.

In conclusion Miss Enderis quoted the slogan of the Milwaukee recreational department: "During working hours a man makes a living, during hours of leisure he makes a life."

Aldermen Are Guests
Members of Appleton city council were guests of the Woman's club at the meeting yesterday. Preceding the talk by Miss Enderis the club chorus under the direction of Miss Helen Mueller sang three selections, "Yesterday and Today," "Bird Songs at Eventide" and "To Anthea."

During the business session the club voted to allow Appleton Girl Scouts the use of the playhouse at the rear of the club house, and to have the committee appointed by the board of directors investigate the plan of sponsoring Saturday night dances at Conway hotel Mrs. E. V. Werner, vice president of the Eighth district federation, announced a luncheon and card party to be held sometime between March 26 and April 1 for the benefit of the foundation fund, reservations to be made at the club house. Mrs. C. C. Hervey announced the style show and bridge party to be held at Pettibone's April 8 and announcement was made also of a treasure tea to take place at the home of Mrs. George H. Schmidt N. Green Bay street. A collection was taken for the art fund of the Wisconsin federation.

Contract Tournament
Continues at Elks Hall

Auxiliary To Buy Tree For Home

A decision to buy a fruit tree for the orchard at the national home at Eaton Rapids, Mich., and to have the name of Mrs. Lena Pierre engraved on the plaque was made by Harvey Pierre auxiliary to Veterans of Foreign Wars at a meeting Thursday night at Eagle hall. The orchard is being planted in order to make the national home self-supporting as far as possible, the plan calling for each auxiliary to pay for one or more trees, each of which will bear a plaque inscribed with the name of the auxiliary by whom it was purchased and the name of a person in whose honor it is to be given. If the tree fails to grow, it will be replaced gratis and the plaque transferred.

Mrs. Pierre was chosen to be honored by having her name on the plaque since she is a charter member of the auxiliary, a Gold Star mother, and the mother of Harvey Pierre after whom the local post and auxiliary are named. She has been active in auxiliary affairs.

Card parties in the homes of members and the sale of tin foil will be promoted to raise the necessary funds for the tree. Mrs. Rex Spencer, treasurer, has announced a prize will be given to the child turning in the most tin foil by the end of the month at the Slater furniture company or to Mrs. Spencer. The child's name must be attached to the foil he turns in.

The fruit orchard plan was explained by Mrs. Irwin Tornow, home fund chairman. Mrs. Helen Rehfeldt, membership chairman, turned in 14 new applications which were balloted on. Mrs. Robert Olson, a member of the committee on the essay contest on "The Constitution and What it Means to the American People," reported that the local contest closed this month and the essays are in the hands of the judges. In addition to the local prizes, the state department has offered a prize of $15 and a medal to the writer of the best essay in the state.

Fifty members were present at the meeting last night which was followed by a social hour and games. Hostesses were Mrs. Barney Gamsky, Mrs. Edith Grunert, Mrs. Chauncey Grunert and Mrs. Regina Glasheen.

GIRL SCOUTS APPEAR IN NEW UNIFORMS

Proud as peacocks of their new Girl Scout uniforms and ties which they wore for the first time at a party celebrating the first anniversary of their troop and the twenty-sixth anniversary of Girl Scouting, three members of the Juliette Low troop of the Orthopedic school are shown above as they appeared at the party Thursday. Shirley Seidl, right, helps Lucille Binder, center, adjust her new tie to give it just the right look. While Rosemary Eichinger, left, looks on with interest. Shirley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alois Seidl, 512 E. Commercial street, is patrol leader of the Oak Jackals patrol. Lucille, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Binder, 1038 W. Fifth street, is corporal in the Robin patrol, and Rosemary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ignatius Eichinger, 1520 E. Gunn street, is patrol leader of the Pansies patrol. The uniforms were gifts of Appleton Girl Scout council and were made by council members. (Post-Crescent Photo)

U. of W. Haresfoot Club To Appear Here April 19

HARESFOOT club of the University of Wisconsin has included Appleton in its itinerary for 1938, it was announced Tuesday by Joseph Bubul, business manager. This year's show, "Let's Talk Turkey," marks the fortieth anniversary of the club and it will be shown at the Rio theater on Tuesday, April 19.

In addition to Appleton, the itinerary includes the Grand theater in Wausau, April 18; the Orpheum theater in Green Bay, April 20; the New Ripon theater in Ripon, April 21; the Uptown theater in Racine, April 22; and the Davidson theater in Milwaukee, April 23.

Following the road trip, the show will play in Madison on two successive weekends, April 29, 30 and May 7.

The traditional slogan of "all our girls are men, yet everyone's a lady," will be continued with the current production in which an all-male cast will portray both masculine and feminine roles.

"Let's Talk Turkey" is set in the mythical Balkan country of Bulgaria and is concerned with a prized goulash recipe which the son of the Sultan of Turkey wants. Included in this "dramatic goulash" are the Turk, his harem, his Nubian slave, Bulgarian soldiers and gypsies.

Written for the third successive year by Howard Teichmann, Chicago, president of the Haresfoot club, the production is under the personal supervision of Charles R. Phipps, veteran of more than 40 years in the theater. The dances are being staged by Leo Kehl, while the score is being arranged and the orchestra directed by Leonard Haug.

Orthopedic Girl Scouts Observe 1st Anniversary

A birthday party in honor of the first anniversary of the Orthopedic school Girl Scout troop and of the twenty-sixth anniversary of the national organization was held Thursday noon at the Orthopedic school, a feature of the celebration being several decorated birthday cakes which were served with ice cream to all children of the school by the local Girl Scout council.

Catherine Cavanaugh, a member of the troop, reviewed the life of Juliette Low, founder of the Girl Scouts movement in America, and of her activities and told of the beginning of scouting and its growth and organization today. She explained that the Orthopedic school troop was named after Juliette Low because it was organized during the anniversary celebration last year. Corinne Heup represented the troop in thanking the Girl Scout council for the uniforms and ties, which the members wore for the first time at the party yesterday.

Present Brownie Pins
As a part of the program, Brownie pins were presented to four girls by Miss Dorothy Calnin, local director, those receiving pins being Elaine Hoffman, Phyllis Case, Donna Derr and Betty Biesterfeld. The meeting opened with the singing of several songs followed by the repeating of the scout promise and laws led by Lucille Binder, one of the troop members.

Girl Scout council members who were present at the meeting included Mrs. Homer H. Benton, commissioner; Mrs. Ray Atcherson and Mrs. S. C. Shannon. Also present were members of the Geneva committee of Lawrence college, sponsors of the troop, Miss Adelle Sawyer and Miss Kathleen Christy were in charge of the program.

The ninth grade troop of Roosevelt Junior High school held an anniversary celebration Wednesday afternoon and evening at First Methodist Episcopal church. Supper was served and the girls worked on Marine activities and played games. The troop was directed by Miss Jean Lewis and Miss Betty White assisted by Miss Jane Frank.

The eighth grade scouts of Roosevelt school had a supper meeting Thursday evening at the scout office with Miss Dorothy Oppenorth in charge. It was decided to change the meeting time from Thursday to Tuesday afternoon. An informal social hour followed the supper.

An investiture ceremony was held by Troop 6 of McKinley school Tuesday afternoon, a number of girls receiving tenderfoot pins. Parents of the girls were present at the ceremony and those who received pins from Miss Betty Lohr, troop leader, were Dolores Bernger, Marion Boyle, Mae Drexler, Shirley Hart, Rita Holson, Geraldine Smith, Juanita Mauthe and Audrey Kiser. The girls then entertained their parents by staging games, folk dances and original patrol dramatizations of scout activities. Patrol leaders in charge were Virginia Schimpf, Lorraine Crotteau and Juanita Mauthe. The program was under the direction of Miss Lohr and Miss Calnin, local director.

Mrs. George R. Wettengel, chairman of the adult education department of the Eighth district of Wisconsin Federation of Women's clubs, Homer L. Gehardt, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., C. C. Bailey, boys' director at the "Y," and Mrs. Bailey attended the second Wisconsin meeting of workers for the development of youth hostels in this state Thursday at Madison. It was a joint meeting with the Wisconsin state planning committee which is assisting in dividing the state into nine youth hostel areas and laying out bicycle, foot and water trails. A local area committee will be appointed.

Appleton is in area 3 which consists of Marinette, Oconto, Shawano, Brown, Outagamie, Winnebago, Calumet, Kewaunee and Manitowish counties. These areas may be rearranged as the work develops.

Representatives were present at the meeting yesterday from Appleton, Superior, LaCrosse, Oshkosh, Milwaukee, Janesville, Madison and Lake Geneva. Four youth hostels will be opened at Lake Geneva in the spring. Rockford college in Illinois has donated farm property which will be opened as a youth hostel in June, and there are already six hostel regions in the east and one in California. J. R. Wilson, Chicago, is regional director for this region which includes Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Minnesota and Iowa, having its headquarters in Chicago. Work began in Milwaukee under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. but has been absorbed by the American Youth Hostel association.

"Radio" Luncheon to Be Held by Chapter Of Zeta Tau Alpha

Alpha Iota chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha at Lawrence college will hold a "radio" luncheon tomorrow afternoon at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Clarence J. West, 202 River drive. During the luncheon the girls will listen to a program, "Zeta on the Air," which will have as its feature an address by Faith Baldwin, an honorary member of the sorority, which will be heard over all stations of the Mutual Broadcasting system from 1 to 1:30, central standard time.

The broadcast will originate in Cleveland, Ohio, where Miss Baldwin will be guest at a luncheon sponsored by Zeta Tau Alpha and the Women's Advertising club. Groups invited to the luncheon include the Junior League, Pan-Hellenic, Theta Sigma Phi, Women's City club, Men's City club, Men's Advertising club, Altrusa, Zonta, Business and Professional Women's club, Kiwanis, Rotary, American Business club, Women's Press club, Cleveland Writers' club and the railway Business Women's association. Of particular interest to Alpha Iota chapter is the fact that Mrs. David Otto, grand vice president of Zeta who will be active in the luncheon program in Cleveland, will visit the Lawrence college chapter within the next 10 days.

428 Masons Hear Talk by Dr. Brown

WHAT older members of the Masonic lodge in Appleton consider to be the first time that two grand masters and a past grand master from three different states have appeared in Appleton on the same program occurred last night when Maxwell Jenks, Abbottsford, grand master of Wisconsin, and Herman T. Chapman, Sioux Falls, S. D., grand master of South Dakota, were present for a north-eastern Wisconsin Masonic rally at Masonic temple which was addressed by Dr. William Mosely Brown, past grand master of the state of Virginia.

The lodge room was crowded to capacity, seven rows of folding chairs having to be set up in addition to the stationary seats, for the meeting. It was estimated that 428 Master Masons representing 27 lodges from five states were present. Dr. Brown spoke on "Freemasonry and Masonic Affairs."

Neenah lodge opened the session in the Master Mason degree after which E. A. Casperson, master of Appleton lodge, presented Mr. Jenks grand master of Wisconsin, who in turn received Mr. Chapman following an introduction by James A. Wagg, past master of Appleton lodge. Dr. Brown was presented to the officers by Dr. C. J. West, a personal friend of the Virginia visitor.

Mr. Jenks presided at the meeting and gave the address of welcome after which he presented Dr. Brown to the assembled Masons. Dr. Brown is a Virginia educator and lecturer, past grand master of the Blue lodges of that state, past grand high priest of the chapters of Royal Arch Masons and past grand commander of the Commanderies of Virginia. Preceding the meeting last night Dr. and Mrs. West entertained at dinner for Dr. Brown at their home, 202 River drive.

Since the death of her husband, Frank Malliet, she has lived at the Louis Large home.

Mr. and Mrs. Chester Baltazor of Deer Creek have rented the 120-acre farm of Mrs. Ed. Hoffmann and will move their family to take possession April 1. Mr. and Mrs. Christ Olson who have resided there the last two years will move to Clintonville.

The caucus in the town of Maple Creek will be held at the town hall at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Ed Vetter of New London have taken employment with Lawrence Flanagan and will commence their duties Monday.

Brief in Waupaca Utility Case to be Filed Tuesday

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—The state public service commission's brief in the Waupaca electric utility acquisition case will be filed next Tuesday, H. T. Ferguson, commission chief counsel, said Thursday.

The Wisconsin Public Service corporation, owner of the Waupaca electric utility plant, is contesting in the Dane county circuit a valuation of $225,000 on the property. Waupaca voters decided three years ago to acquire the plant. The company's brief has already been filed with Judge A. C. Hoppmann, who heard oral arguments recently.

Mr. Flanagan, who has been confined to his home much of the last few years, has improved so as to get about in the home. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lamb have moved their furniture from Smyco to the William Hebbe home, until plans can be made for the summer season.

Right and Wrong Way In Bidding

BY ELY CULBERTSON

I have seen many hands in which the correct contract was named by one partner and taken out to a bad contract by the other. Superficially, it would appear that the take-out constituted a major error, but this is by no means a fair conclusion. There is a right and a wrong way to reach the correct final contract. Let us discuss this question further, from the point of view of an actual hand.

The bidding:

North East South West
1 club Pass 1 spade Pass
2 no trump Pass 3 spades Pass
3 no trump Pass 4 spades Double
Pass Pass Pass

It will be seen that North actually did name a good contract, three no trump, and that South took him out to four spades, which was inevitably doomed. Yet North's bidding was very bad, and South's was correct! I know of no first rank player who holding South's hand, would permit three no trump to stand in the fashion that North dictated. They would feel, quite reasonably, that the South hand might not be worth a single trick at no trump, aside from its value in stopping the diamond and spade suits, but that it might take four or five tricks with spades as trump. The void heart suit in South's hand would act as a powerful deterrent toward permitting three no trump to stand after the particular bids that North had produced.

Now, let us consider South's decision if the bidding had gone properly, as follows:

North East South West
1 club Pass 1 spade Pass
2 hearts Pass 2 spades Pass
2 no trump Pass 3 spades Pass
3 no trump Pass ?

South's problem at this point would assume an entirely different complexion. Now, North has shown a biddable heart suit, a diamond stopper and a generally powerful hand, but has strongly indicated a singleton spade. He not only "reversed" by starting with a club and later bidding hearts, but had persisted to three no trump in the face of South's non-committal spade rebid.

Just as every expert of my acquaintance would persist to four spades, in the previous bidding sequence, so every one of them would, I know, pass to three no trump if North had truly revealed both his strength and his distribution.

Too Little Emphasis On Memorizing These Days

BY ANGELO PATRI

One of my first experiences in school, one that I have remembered clearly all these years, was learning my lesson "by heart."

"Here," said Miss Grizzle. "Learn this page by heart."

I had never heard that term before. I had until then, been taught at home by a devoted old uncle. I looked my mystification, and a friendly boy sitting next to me said, "She means you learn every word so you can say it to her before you go home."

The page was a poem by William Wordsworth — "She dwelt among the untrodden ways Beside the springs of Dove" — and I learned it quickly because it sang itself into my brain. Beyond the music of it there was no meaning in it for me that day.

"Do you know your lesson?" asked Miss Grizzle when it was my turn.

"Yes ma'am. I think so."

"Don't think you know it. Know it. Say it to me."

I said it, singing along in sympathy with the lovely words. As I chanted, Miss Grizzle's face softened. She nodded her head. "Now go copy it, and mind you get every capital, punctuation mark and line exact. Look at your book and make certain."

I don't know how many poems and bits of fine prose I learned the next two years, but there were many. I had to be letter perfect before Miss Grizzle would let me go. "—And oh, The Difference to me!" I learned lovely words; I held beautiful thoughts; powerful thoughts. I learned about character and beauty and duty and all the things that were of good repute so that I might call upon them in the time of my need. I would not part with what Miss Grizzle gave me those two years for all the learning I gathered afterward in loftier halls of knowledge. I had learned by heart the finest things in the English language.

It is stylish nowadays to belittle this learning by heart. The emphasis is supposed to go to the head. "Children do not need to memorize facts. They can go to them in books."

They do not need to learn to recite poetry and prose. Memorizing is drudgery that kills the joy of reading beautiful poetry. It is better to let children enjoy their poetry, to give them a taste for it, by reading to them, letting them read to themselves, and go on from there. To all of that I would say a loud No.

Much of our time we spend alone with our lonely selves. The well-stocked head is our greatest source of companionship. The things we have learned by heart are ready to serve us. The sturdy facts of history, the music of remembered poetry, the help and comfort of remembered truths, are sustaining power in the time of need. Learning of what should be learned, honest achievement through effort in study are what counts in our mental furniture.

Mr. Patri has prepared a leaflet entitled, "A Book List" giving the titles of a wide variety of books all children should read. Send for it, addressing your request to Mr. Angelo Patri, Child Psychology Department of this paper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

Responsible Opposition

These dreadful Russian trials remind us of what happens in a state where it is treason to oppose the ruling powers. For whether or not the defendants committed the crimes they are so valuable in confessing, there would seem to be no doubt that they were the leaders of what would be the opposition party in a free country.

In Russia there is no legal way in which men can oppose the party in power. And, therefore, since in the nature of things there must always be an opposition, they went underground and became if not actual conspirators then certainly potential conspirators. For what they are now confessing would not be credible to the Russian mind if Russians did not believe that an underground opposition is disposed to rely on intrigue, treason, sabotage, and assassination.

These trials ought, if anything, to give pause to the innocent intellectuals here and elsewhere who have been telling us how marvelously democratic is the Russian Constitution and how much we have to learn from the Russian experiment about conducting our own affairs. For now certainly it ought to have become plain to every one how radical is the difference between a state where opposition is treason and a state like ours or the British or the French where opposition is recognized as a necessary and desirable part of the constitutional system. In Britain the leader of His Majesty's opposition is paid a handsome salary by the state; and here, too, the leader of the opposition has a respected office in the life of the capital and is provided with the facilities he needs to conduct the opposition. But in Russia he is driven into exile, he conspires in the dark, or he is arrested and shot.

To have minimized the difference between these two conceptions of government, to have argued that the Russian system is somehow like the American, only perhaps better, is one of the great disservices of the so-called liberals, and one of the main reasons why the progressive movement is so tragically divided against itself.

Poor Opposition Is Menace To Government
All that a constitutional system can do is to recognize the function of an opposition and provide it with the rights and the means that it needs in order to exercise that function. After that, the success of the system depends very largely on how well the opposition discharges its responsibility. For it has a responsibility, and an irresponsible opposition will make any democratic government work badly, and may in the end destroy it.

Can it be said that the opposition to the Roosevelt Administration is acting as responsibly as it should? I am afraid not. That is, for example, the field in which partisanship is least justifiable, the field of foreign affairs. On Monday the Republican minority of the House Naval Affairs Committee brought in their report criticizing the naval bill. In the course of it they declared that passage of the bill will give the President "blanket authority" to apply the universal quarantine policy and an Asiatic interventionist policy.

Now this may not sound like a very serious charge in Washington. But in Japan and China, coming as it does from the official opposition, it is a very grave charge indeed. It amounts to telling the two nations that they may expect President Roosevelt to intervene in the Asiatic war. If the charge is believed in Asia, the extremely delicate business of conducting foreign relations is made much more difficult. A responsible opposition ought not to make a charge of this nature unless it has clear evidence that the charge is true.

But there is no evidence that the charge is true, and the Republicans are guilty of not weighing the weighty words they employed.

Reorganization Bill
No Outrageous Proposal

Another example, though it is not so serious in its consequences, is the attack now being made upon the reorganization bill. It is being asserted that the bill must be opposed for the same reasons and in the same temper as the Court-packing bill last year. Granting that the bill is highly debatable, I am altogether unable to see how and why those of us who opposed the judiciary bill root and branch must feel that the same objections apply to this bill.

Certainly that portion of it which is now being debated in the Senate, the proposal to give the President the power to reorganize the executive departments, is not to be compared with last year's proposal to give him the power to appoint a new Supreme Court. The President is, after all, the Chief Executive, and a proposal which gives him power to consolidate the executive agencies is not on the face of it an outrageous proposal.

The proposal seems all the less outrageous in view of its long history. Whereas, the Court-packing scheme was worked up secretly and presented without notice, executive reorganization has been studied by Congress for at least forty years. Senator Byrnes in his very able speech of February 28 made it clear, it seems to me, to any unbiased reader, that the proposal is in no essential respect new or unprecedented.

Congress Granted The Authority To President
Thus, in 1932, Congress recognized that if the executive departments were to be reorganized the initiative must be in the President and not in Congress. By the Economy Act of June 30, 1932, President Hoover was authorized to reorganize governmental agencies not created by statute, subject to the veto of either house within sixty days after his executive order was filed. In December, 1932, President Hoover tried to rearrange some fifty-eight agencies, but in January, 1933, just before Mr. Roosevelt was inaugurated, Congress disapproved.

Then, on March 3, 1933, the day before Mr. Roosevelt was inaugurated, the Congress again gave the President this authority, though in broader form. Only one Senator was opposed. Three weeks later, in the famous Economy Act, the President was again given the authority to reorganize.

Roosevelt Has Made Little Use Of Power
The authority given the President in the present bill is not so broad as that which Congress gave him for the first two years of his tenure. Now, the interesting thing is that Mr. Roosevelt, though he has already possessed this so-called dictatorial power, made mighty little use of it when he had it. And that is the crux of the matter. In theory the bill may seem to give him enormous power; in practice it gives him a large collection of political headaches. And the chances are ten to one, not that he will reorganize too much, but that he will find it politically inexpedient to reorganize enough.

For every agency of government with its bureaucracy is the natural enemy of reorganization. It is so much the enemy of reorganization, it has so many vested interests and so many political connections, that Congress is admittedly incapable of carrying out a reorganization. The proof of that is that Congress has been talking about reorganization since the Dockery committee of 1894. If it can be done, only the President can do it. And he will not do it unless he decides to be a hero and risk his political life.

Opposition Barking Up The Wrong Tree
So it seems to me that the opposition is barking up the wrong tree when it raises a hue and cry about this proposal. I can understand the suspicions which the President has aroused, and I share many of them. But if opposition is to be responsible and respected and effective, it must not attack him on general suspicion and refuse to examine the merits of specific proposals. It must not, above all, it seems to me, cry out on all occasions that anything he does is an imitation of, or a step toward, the European dictatorships.

The analogy just does not hold. Mr. Roosevelt has a considerable appetite for power. By American political standards he conducts a very personal government, often in a high-handed and vindictive manner. But in no essential way is anything he is doing really like what is going on in the totalitarian states, and to pretend that it is like that is not to make opposition effective but to make it faintly ridiculous. (Copyright, 1938, New York Tribune, Inc.)

At Lillehammer, Norway, is a great folk museum containing many priceless Norse antiques. It was started 50 years ago by a doctor who used to accept pieces of old furniture from family attics in place of cash payment for his services. A relic a day kept the doctor's bill away.

8:30—West DePere versus East DePere.
9:30—New London versus Neenah.

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
KAUKAUNA—Neenah and New London High school basketball teams advanced to the semi-finals of the Kaukauna district Class B tournament here last night when the former downed Neenah by a 36 to 24 count and the latter managed to stave off a Kaukauna rally in the fourth quarter and cop a 26 to 21 decision. In the other game, Waupaca advanced a notch in the consolation flight when it defeated Clintonville, 29 to 20.

Last night's two championship games ran pretty much to form. New London had comparatively little trouble with Kaukauna despite the close score. The Kaws staged their usual fourth period spurt to make the count close after the Wolf river team had held a fairly respectable margin most of the way. Neenah won handily from its neighboring city because the latter, without the services of Du Charme, forward and high scorer, had little in the way of an offense. Semi-final competition will feature tonight's program. The evening will open with Kaukauna and Menasha battling at 7:30 for the right to meet Waupaca in the consolation final on Saturday evening with the Bluejays a slight favorite. Neenah vs. New London.

At 8:30 East and West DePere will clash in the championship round in a game that will be a classic from a DePere standpoint. The schools do not meet in sports under ordinary conditions, and the prospects of a title game between them probably will draw half of the city to Kaukauna. However, West DePere's record is a trifle better than the school across the river and West therefore is the favorite.

The evening will close with the 9:30 game featuring New London and Neenah. Neenah, because of its showing in Northeastern Wisconsin conference play where it split with the Wolf river five, gets the nod but there may be an upset. Neenah handles the ball better than other teams, has several scoring threats and appears

Distance Stars To Match Strides In Big Ten Meet

Chuck Fenske of Wisconsin Will Defend Indoor Mile Title

CHICAGO—(AP)—One of the greatest fields of distance stars in the Big Ten's track and field history will match strides tomorrow night in the Western conference's 28th annual indoor championships, high spot of a weekend of action involving conference aces in four sports.

Among the luminaries in the longer races will be Charles (Chuck) Fenske of Wisconsin, defending indoor mile champion; Tommy Deckard of Indiana, undefeated this season in dual meet competition in both the mile and two mile events; Jimmy Smith, Deckard's teammate; Paul Benner of Ohio State, who set a new two mile Yost field house mark of 9:19.7 this season at Ann Arbor against Michigan, and Ralph Schwarzkopf, the Michigan sophomore star.

Fenske, Smith and Deckard were expected to make the mile race a sizzling event which may produce a new record, all three having stepped the distance close to the mark of 4:12.5, set by Henry Brocksmith of Indiana in 1932.

The anticipated crowd of 2,400 fans at the University of Chicago field house probably will see plenty of action in the two mile test. Another of Brocksmith's records, 9:18.4 for the distance, will be aimed at by both Deckard and Smith, and Benner and Schwarzkopf. Deckard has done the distance in 9:04 and Smith has bettered 9:15.

Michigan, seeking its fifth straight indoor crown, will rule a slight favorite but Indiana is expected to make a great bid to topple the Wolverines. Ohio State and Wisconsin are rated outside chances at the team championship.

Preliminary heats in the 60-yard dash, 70-yard high hurdles, the 440 yard run and the half mile event will be run off tonight, with finals in all events to be held Saturday night.

Trials also will be held tonight in the Big Ten swimming championships, to be decided Saturday night at Northwestern.

Big Ten wrestlers will engage in early round competition tonight at Northwestern's pattern gymnasium, with finals scheduled for tomorrow night, while 36 expert Western conference fencers will compete for Big Ten honors Saturday at Chicago's Bartlett gym.

Grunt Card Will Feature Villains

Show Scheduled Next Wednesday Evening at Menasha Armory

Menasha—Villains will be plentiful at the next mat show at S. A. Cook armory according to the card announced by William Erickson, promoter, today. The show will be held next Wednesday evening, starting at 8:30.

Joe Dorsetti, Detroit, billed as the "Italian rebel", will tangle with Duke Ruppenthal, Tigertown, in the windup. Dorsetti has appeared in the Twin Cities only once but was successful in raising the ire of the fans. He will tangle with Ruppenthal for two out of three falls in an hour time limit.

The arch-villain of them all, Speedy Franks, will be back in the semiwindup. He will meet Stan Pesek, popular Polish grappler who recently was awarded the state middleweight championship. This bout will be for two out of three falls, also in an hour time limit.

Rowdy Pocan, Kimberly, will return for the opening bout in which he will tangle with John Principi, New York. They will meet for one fall in an hour time limit.

Notre Dame Favored To Retain Title in Central Track Meet

South Bend, Ind.—(AP)—A field of 192 trackers from 13 schools will start an attack on Central Inter-Collegiate conference indoor track records tonight at the twelfth annual renewal of the competition.

Notre Dame is cast in the role of defending champion and also ranks as the favorite to repeat.

Drake, Michigan State, and Pittsburgh were regarded as the most potent challengers.

Seven individual champions were back for another fling at titles. They were Johnny Woodruff of Pittsburgh, Olympic 800 meter champion; Ed Burke, the Marquette high jumper who holds the world indoor record; Art Thomas of Pittsburgh, 440 yard dash titleholder; Greg Rice of Notre Dame, defender of the mile championship who also holds the N. C. A. two mile title; Bill Feiler of Marquette, two miler, and Hoyle Elvins, of Drake, pole vault champion.

Neenah, Appleton Highs Plan Intramural Tourney

Neenah—The intramural sports tournament between Neenah and Appleton High schools will be staged Saturday, March 26, here at the high school and Roosevelt school gymnasiums, it was announced today.

Ole Jorgensen, physical education director, announced that the tournament this year will be conducted on a non-decision basis.

There will be a total of 15 events during the day and evening. The badminton contests will be held in the morning at the high school gymnasium, while the volleyball, ping pong, shuffleboard, rope climbing, checkers, free throw, basketball golf, tug o' war, basketball and Indian (hand) wrestling contests will be in the afternoon at the high school gymnasium.

The boxing and wrestling matches will be staged in the evening at Roosevelt gymnasium.

The "hottest" Fox River Valley conference basketball race in several years will come to a close tonight with games at Green Bay East, Oshkosh and Sheboygan.

Three teams are tied for first place, East, Green Bay West and Oshkosh, but when the firing dies this evening, there'll be only two. Oshkosh, the defending champion, is conceded a share of the top because it meets Fond du Lac which should be an easy victim.

Green Bay East and West, however, will tangle at East and the winner will share honors with the Indians. West is favored in view of the fact the Wildcats have been improving fast during the last half the race while East suffered an irreparable loss when Bob Monard, star forward, was injured. Since he took to a hospital bed with a broken leg, the Red Devils haven't been the same team.

In the evening's other game Manitowoc will tangle with Sheboygan at Sheboygan. The natural rivalry between the schools is the only thing which makes the game of interest.

Miss Lindsay's marriage to George Hall, attorney of Rockford, Ill., will take place early in June.

Edward Ehlike Injured When Trucks Collide

Edward Ehlike, 42, was cut and bruised about the head when his truck and another driven by Al Schere, 36, Cudahy, collided about 11:30 yesterday morning on Superior street. Ehlike was going south on N. Superior and Schere was traveling north when the machines collided. Both trucks were damaged and Ehlike was treated by a local physician.

Eastern Star at Waupaca Observes 40th Anniversary; 6 Charter Members Present

Waupaca—The fortieth anniversary of Waupaca Chapter No. 107, Order of the Eastern Star, was observed here Wednesday evening in the presence of charter members, past matrons and patrons, and Worthy Patron Roy Holly.

Miss Jeanette Houseman and Miss Mercedes Mendelson were assigned as escorts to the charter members—six of whom were present—and to the past matrons and patrons. There were 16 past officers who celebrated the occasion.

After the chapter had opened, the worthy matron announced that in addition to the birthday of the chapter, it was also the thirty-first wedding anniversary of Worthy Patron Holly and his wife, past Matron Mabel Holly. In their honor Mrs. Myrtle Bacher sang "Because," by De Hardlot, accompanied at the piano by Miss Brenna Gibson. Since 1918 when he was patron for the first time Mr. Holly has served the chapter as patron for eight years. It was during the leadership of Mr. and Mrs. Holly as matron and patron in 1921-1922, that 81 members were initiated into the order.

Mrs. Isabel Salan was mistress of ceremonies for the program which followed immediately the regular meeting of the order and which was carried out in keeping with the anniversary idea. Opening the program were piano selections, old Irish airs played by Miss Gibson: "My Wild Irish Rose," by Chauncey Oleott; "Molly on the Shore" and "Temple Dance," both arranged by Percy Granger.

A drama, "The March of Time," was then presented by the officers of 1938 and included reminiscences of events which have occurred since the organization of the chapter. A huge three-tiered birthday cake with 40 lighted candles, carried into the room by the marshal, Mrs. Linda Teisberg, was a feature of the ceremony being presented.

As Mrs. Belle Eva Houseman, member of the chapter since 1907, turned the pages of events the charter members were introduced and presented with roses, and the past matrons and past patrons with miniature gavels.

Organized in 1898 It was in 1898 when seven men and women traveled by horse and buggy to New London to be initiated into the Eastern Star. They were H. H. Suhs, George James, Nettie Miller, Lottie Chandler, Pauline Scott, Mabel Miller and Nelle Scott. After their initiation they asked for and were granted their demits, and on March 19 of the same year a dispensation for a charter was applied for. On April

Mrs. Sanford Barth Is Hostess to Aid Society

Black Creek—Mrs. Sanford Barth was hostess to the Ladies Aid society of Emmanuel Evangelical church, town of Cicero, Wednesday afternoon. The Rev. H. A. Bernhardt gave a lesson message and the prayer, and songs were sung.

The April meeting will be held with Mrs. William Barth. The program committee is composed of Mrs. L. A. Brusewitz and Mrs. Raymond Thomas.

Mrs. Ervin Rohloff entertained the Royal Neighbors at a costume party, Wednesday evening.

Following the business meeting a reading, "John, John," was given by Mrs. F. J. Weisenberger; vocal duet, Mrs. J. J. Laird and Mrs. C. E. Roach; a play, "Hiring a Maid," by Mrs. R. H. Droeger, Mrs. Rohloff, Mrs. H. J. Brandt, Mrs. Roach, Mrs. Gertrude Maconeghy, Mrs. Julius Weisenberger.

Firemen Called When Spark Starts Roof Fire

Firemen were called to the home of Thomas Arbogast, 1015 W. Spencer street, at 6:23 last night when a small roof fire started from chimney sparks. Little damage was reported. A second alarm was answered to the August Kirk apartment at 413 W. College avenue at 8:50 last night when occupants smelled gas. Investigation showed a leak in the furnace.

Sassman and Mrs. Arnold Burmeister.

The program committee was composed of Miss Bernice White, Mrs. Weisenberger and Mrs. Roach.

Prizes at five hundred were won by Mrs. L. A. Bergsbaken, Mrs. Weisenberger and Mrs. Sassman. Costume prizes were taken by Miss White, Mrs. Maconeghy and Mrs. Weisenberger.

Flying Inexpensive Hobby, Milwaukee Man Tells Group at Clintonville

Clintonville—Flying is an inexpensive hobby, in the opinion of James B. King, president of the Milwaukee chapter of the National Aeronautic association.

Speaking to the members of Gateway chapter at Clintonville, Tuesday night, King said that the new lightweight planes can be and are being operated at costs comparable to those of an inexpensive automobile.

A member of the state aeronautical board as representative of private pilots, King himself has flown hundreds of hours since he began flying in 1934, he said. A recent trip from Racine to Washington, D. C., and return cost him only $27.40 for gasoline and oil, he asserted. His remarks were made to show that private flying is increasing and that it is no longer considered an expensive hobby, but rather that many men and women look upon it as a necessity as much as people consider automotive transportation a necessity today.

Mr. King also pointed out that rigid aeronautical laws today so regulate schools of flying instruction that a person taking flying lessons now is sure of receiving safe, competent and authoritative instruction. A school operated in Racine, he said, now has more than 80 students at one time, has graduated 11 transport pilots, and has students as young as 16 and as old as 65.

"Aviation will receive a tremendous boost in Clintonville as soon as your airport is completed, and an inducement given competent pilots to operate a flying school here," he said emphatically.

Discusses Air Strength
S. J. Tilleson, captain of the Clintonville national guard unit, and a World War veteran who had charge of airplanes and aviation schools in France, discussed the comparative air strength of the United States and foreign nations. Tilleson is one of the active members of Gateway chapter.

"The United States ships, 2,000 in number, are up-to-date. We have no obsolete types of planes," he said, in commenting upon the James report of world air forces which appeared in "National Aeronautics" magazine in January.

"The army air corps is purchasing between 500 and 700 planes of modern type each year. It is the plan to build a 100 plane air service strength to 2,340 planes by 1939."

"We do need more men for the army and navy air corps," he continued. "We must have more trained pilots, mechanics, observers, and other personnel; we must build more factories, hangars, and other facilities; we must maintain our present leadership in aeronautical engineering so that our air defenses are adequate."

Mr. Tilleson also explained the various types of new aerial bombers recently built by Martin and Boeing, aeronautical manufacturers for the United States army.

A boy's viewpoint of the importance of aviation was given by Robert Hyde, son of Raymond Hyde, editor of the Clintonville Tribune. The youth described a visit to the Goodyear airship dock at Akron, Ohio, and described various types of dirigibles. Young Hyde also exhibited several model planes which he has built, indicative of his strong interest in aviation.

A plea for the addition of a course in model plane building as an extra-curricular activity at Clintonville High school was made by the youth, who asserted that in a recent poll of students to determine their choice of an extra-curricular activity the model plane idea was a strong second to an athletic sport.

Displays Airmail Map
Postmaster Earl Moldenhauer, exhibiting an unique airmail map, pointed out the importance of airmail to the community and nearby cities. The map, about eight feet wide and five feet high, shows the time at which airmail from Clintonville will arrive in various cities of the United States and Canada. Moldenhauer cited several instances whereby, for example, a letter mailed from Clintonville by 1 o'clock in the afternoon would reach Vancouver, British Columbia, by 2 o'clock in the afternoon of the following day; that a letter leaving here at 1 o'clock in the afternoon would arrive in Washington, D. C., by airmail early the following morning.

An explanation of the state aeronautical law was made by Lloyd Bauer, chapter president, who asserted that at least safety in flying, private as well as commercial, would be effected by the new law. The state board of aeronautics, including King as representative of private pilots, Howard Morey, Madison, representing the airport operators; S. J. Wittman, Oshkosh, representing the transport pilots; Tom Pattison, state highway commissioner; and a fifth member to be appointed as representative of the state planning board, now supervises all types of flying in the state. Restrictions are placed upon the type of flying, licensing of pilots, and types of fields used for landing and housing, Bauer said.

Four new members were reported to the chapter, Gale Stelger, Weyauwega, son of the Waupaca county clerk; L. J. Stelger; Carl Folkman of this city, Robert Koehler, sales executive of the Four Wheel Drive Auto company, and Walter S. Worzalla, general manager of the Worzalla Publishing Co.

Stevens Point, and publisher of the Central Wisconsin Herald.

President Bauer appointed the following committee chairman: Membership, James Smiley; research, Leo Russell; national air defense, E. J. Tilleson; civil aeronautics, E. E. Giosso; junior aeronautics, Fred Gansen; airport, Stanley Waraer; legislative, F. M. Higgins; program, R. H. Schmidt; social, Max Stieg; and publicity, A. H. Rice. The next meeting of Gateway chapter will be held at the city hall on Tuesday evening, April 12.

Gateway chapter of the National Aeronautic association at Clintonville is featured in the March issue of "National Aeronautics," monthly NAA publication, which was received by local members this week.

On page 16 of the issue is an article "NAA Sells Itself" written by A. H. Rice, secretary of Gateway chapter, which describes the manner in which the chapter was organized.

Running two full pages and alluding to the efforts of the organization committee and other members to establish the chapter, the article contains photographs of the NAA display in the show windows of Lundved's hardware store; the presentation of the national charter to Max Stieg by "Gib" Loach, flying sheriff of Fond du Lac county; Stanley Warner, engineer and airport designer of the chapter; Lloyd H. Bauer, president of Gateway chapter, and leader in its unusual activity; Walter A. Olen, the chapter's first member; and A. M. Rice, the author.

Safety Is Topic at Woman's Club Meet

At Brillion School

Brillion — The Brillion Womans' club held its regular meeting at the high school Tuesday evening. This meeting included a safety program at which Raymond Jensen of Chilton, county highway commissioner, gave a talk on "Safety." Signs and charts were displayed and explained.

Other numbers on the program included an instrumental solo by Harold Ebbert, accompanied by Mrs. Edgar Mueller, reading by Miss A. Merrill, concluded by community singing, directed by Miss Helen Beer.

During the business meeting which was conducted by the vice president Mrs. Elliot Zander, owing to the illness of Mrs. O. C. Worrell, president, Miss Mildred McCormick gave a report on the "Bazaar of Samples."

At the next meeting, March 22, "Crime Prevention" will be discussed. Miss Anna Muth of Manitowish will be the guest speaker at this meeting. Lunch was served to all present.

The regular meeting of the American Legion was held at the Legion hall Monday evening. Plans for the spring conference, which will be held in Brillion, were discussed. Hiram Pettet will act as chairman of the event. Guests from New Holstein, Reedsville and Hilbert were present at this meeting. After the meeting guests and members enjoyed a lunch at the Marigold Gardens.

A community service program will be presented at a meeting of the Arno Bloodom American Legion Auxiliary Monday at the legion hall. Every member has been asked to donate a book at this meeting for the public library. The committee in charge for this meeting includes: Mrs. Arthur Lau, chairman; Mrs. Henry Geiger, Miss Lillie Schlei and Mrs. Henry Behnke.

Court Approves Foreclosure Sale Of Hotel Menasha

Bid of $40,100 for Two Buildings by Mrs. Clovis Is Confirmed

Oshkosh — A final order confirming the foreclosure sale of Hotel Menasha and the mercantile building to Mrs. Melissa Clovis for $40,100 was issued by Judge Henry P. Hughes in circuit court at Oshkosh Thursday afternoon after an agreement between the contending parties was reached.

The agreement was reached by the parties and entered by the court after a hearing on an order to show cause why a sum to interest should not be credited to Mrs. Clovis as purchaser of the building. The question being argued yesterday was whether Mrs. Clovis was entitled to interest from the time of the sheriff's sale or from the time of the supreme court ruling which confirmed her purchase.

Following the agreement, the order to show cause was dismissed by the judge and the court order was entered, embodying the points of the agreement.

The terms of the agreement were not filed with the clerk of circuit court.

The A. J. Straus Paying Agency, Inc., and Arthur J. Straus, trustee, foreclosed the mortgages held on the property in 1935 at the time of the death of Dr. Anton B. Jensen, who had given the mortgages.

In the foreclosure sale which followed, Mrs. Clovis bid $40,100 on the two buildings, but her bid was held open when the matter was brought into circuit court by the paying agency, Mrs. Clovis then carried the appeal into the supreme court.

The supreme court overruled the late Judge Fred Beglinger on Jan. 11 of this year, approving Mrs. Clovis's bid of $40,100.

In the original action the defendants were Dr. Frederick G. Jensen, executor under the will of his father, Dr. Anton Jensen; Irma Jensen, the doctor's widow; Richard A. Jensen; First National bank of Menasha; First Congregational society of Menasha; Menasha Hotel company; and Mrs. Clovis.

Zephyrs Open Mitt Schedule Tonight

Meet St. John Squad At St. Mary Gymnasium

Menasha — St. Mary High school boxers will open their mitt season at 8:30 tonight when they oppose the boxers of St. John High school of Little Chute in the St. Mary gymnasium. A ring was erected on the main floor of the gymnasium Thursday afternoon, George Christy will referee the bouts.

Boxers of the two schools will be paired according to weight and experience and a card of at least nine bouts is expected. Several exhibition bouts between St. Mary boxers also may be arranged.

Probable pairings in matches tonight will bring Joseph Winius, Little Chute, into the ring against Don Cheslock, 85 pounds; Al Primesberger, 95 pounds; Harold Dorris, Little Chute, at 100 pounds; and Tony Schuler versus James Koehn of the Flying Dutchmen at 110 pounds.

The other member of the fighting Schuler brothers, Jerome, likely will meet Ralph Jensen at 115 pounds. At 130 pounds Roger Koehn, who also stars for the Flying Dutchmen in basketball and football, will meet Ed Mett.

In the 140 pound class likely pairings are Jerome Helt versus Floyd Ebbert; Albert Huismann versus Robert Riesch, and Les Helt versus Al LeMay. In the 160 pound class Little Chute mitt slingers have Van Bostel and Syl Lenz while the Zephyrs have Vern Van Dyke.

Other members of the St. John squad include Quintin DeBruin, James Lenz and Kenneth Hurst at 105 pounds; Robert Siebers at 127 pounds and Gordon Baumgart at 135 pounds.

Man Found Guilty of Hit-and-Run Driving

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau Oshkosh — After a jury in municipal court brought in a verdict of guilty after deliberating less than 30 minutes, T. E. Furman, 30, Oshkosh, charged with hit-and-run driving Feb. 9, involving an automobile owned by Orville G. Hegner, 1213 N. Appleton street, Appleton, Judge S. J. Luchinger fined the defendant $10 and costs or 15 days in county jail.

The collision occurred while Hegner was visiting at the residence of Alderman Joseph O. Seftenberg, Jackson street, Oshkosh.

Lewis C. Magnusen, district attorney, charged Furman had left the scene of the collision without leaving his name and address. Hegner testified he went to the door of Seftenberg's home when he heard the crash.

The Twin Cities office of the Appleton Post-Crescent for its editorial, circulation and advertising departments is located at 519 N. Commercial street and the telephone number is 4100. News items, copy or orders for advertising and orders for subscriptions may be left at the office or may be telephoned. This number also may be called before 7 o'clock in the evening for delivery on papers missed by carriers in Neenah or Menasha.

KILLED NAGGING WIFE
Rex Brittain, (above), 33-year-old farmer, was held at Paducah, Ky., after W. H. Crowder, Graves county judge, said he confessed beating his wife to death with an ice cream crank, dousing her body and setting fire to it. He said his wife "had been nagging me for several years and I just couldn't please her."

Life in Russia Is Pictured for Club

Marriage Costs 60 Cents And Divorce $10, Lange Says

Neenah — While there is no exploitation of man by man in Soviet Russia, there is exploitation of man by the state, declared Harry C. Lange who recently returned from Russia where he spent 2½ years as an employee of the American Embassy in Moscow, when he spoke at the Twin City Business and Professional Women's club dinner meeting at the Valley Inn last night.

"Children are the common produce of the community, the property of the state and the state is their father and mother," declared the speaker as he explained that in keeping with the socialist theory, "there is no family life, love is not bound by any law but its own and free love flourishes.... and is free."

Mr. Lange told of his trip to Russia and of many experiences while there, discussing for the most part the status of women. He explained that formerly, couples could be married and divorced in Russia for about six cents, now it costs about sixty cents to be married and $10 for the first divorce.

Clothing of the Soviets has improved because of the tourist trade since travelers can sell a suit of clothes or a pair of shoes at a profit as the Soviets would have to pay about $125 to $250 for a suit of clothes. There is not much to purchase in the markets, Mr. Lange pointed out because the meat is filthy and milk can only be purchased once a week.

Mr. Lange played records of Russian music and showed motion pictures he had taken of Russian cities.

In his short discussion about Japan, Mr. Lange stated that Japanese people should not be condemned because of the military government's policies. He also declared that America was antagonizing Japan with its talk of a silk boycott, that he did not believe that was the method of settling difficulties but that if one could catch all the fish in the Pacific ocean, it would be better since that is what Japan lives on.

Mr. Lange contended that Japan was seeking to eliminate the Chinese army, not because of any antagonism against Chinese but because it was a necessary step to an attack on Russia. "However," said the speaker, "if Japan doesn't attack Russia within the next two years, Russia will be too strong for them."

Marinette Man Fined $100, Costs

Pleds Guilty of Drunken Driving Following Arrest at Neenah

Neenah — Louis S. Vandenberg, 502 Houston street, Marinette, pleaded guilty of drunken driving and was fined $100 and costs with an alternative of 90 days in the county jail when arraigned this morning before Justice of the Peace Gaylor C. Loehning.

Vandenberg is the seventh drunk driver convicted in the Twin Cities since Jan. 1.

The defendant was arrested at 2:45 Thursday afternoon by Neenah police. Police said that Vandenberg was driving in an erratic manner on N. Commercial street. He attempted to park his car in front of Macy's drug store and the automobile climbed the curb and drove onto the sidewalk, it was reported.

4-H Leaders to Make Plans for Year's Work

Neenah — Winnebago county 4-H clubs will resume activities for the year Wednesday, when Miss Grace Roundtree and V. V. Varney, assistant state club leaders, will be here for a conference with county 4-H club leaders, Robert C. Heffernan, county agricultural agent, announced today. The meeting will be at the Rauli hotel, Oshkosh, starting at 10:30 in the morning and continuing until 4 in the afternoon. Plans for club activities for the year will be discussed and formulated.

Communism Possible in America, Rotarians Told

Neenah — Contending that communism certainly can happen in America, Harry C. Lange, New York City, a member of the diplomatic corps at the American Embassy, Moscow, Soviet Russia, for 2½ years told Rotarians at a noon meeting Thursday at the Valley Inn that if the trial of 21 Russians who are charged with treason in the Soviet blood purge trial is proven to be actually on the level, communism will be given a great impetus in America.

The diplomat stated at the outset of his talk that he neither advocated nor condemned communism, adding that he was giving the Rotarians a true picture of Soviet Russia.

Less than 2 per cent of the Russians are communists, so it isn't the actual number of communists, needed to sway a nation but sympathizers to the cause who aren't actually communists, he pointed out. He added that there are many more sympathizers in America than anticipated. Lange also pointed out Russia was even more Christian than America when it turned communist.

"I have attended several communist meetings at Madison Square Gardens in New York, and I have noticed that it isn't the illiterate who are interested in communism but university students and other intellectuals," Lange stated.

Still Socialism
"Communism doesn't actually exist in the Soviet Union," Lange declared. "It is socialism which hasn't as yet reached the stage of communism, although that is the goal."

"Russians contended that their form of government is no longer considered an experiment, and it is their opinion as well as many Americans in Russia that communism is succeeding, slowly but surely," the diplomat said. "In order for the Russians to obtain their highest goal, communism or socialism will have to spread until it is in all the countries in the world, and that is one of their aims. It is said that half of the world today is either communist or socialist, and the people are wondering now whether England is turning toward socialism."

The Russians want either all communism or a return to semi-capitalism, according to the speaker. He said the communists have a strong platform, and they contend that they preach more democracy than we who are under capitalism. He added, "Regardless of what you may have heard to the contrary, the socialists have done a great deal for the Russian people."

Costs Are High
There is no real starvation in Russia, although it may be called near starvation, Lange told the Rotarians. The high cost of food makes it impossible for the people to put meals on their tables as are common here. Likewise, the extreme high cost of clothes makes it impossible for the people to dress properly.

The reason for the scarcity of food and clothing is that the government has concentrated solely on what it calls the more necessary things, such as machinery to make buildings, airplanes, tanks, automobiles and trucks. Russia is shipping out its farm products in exchange for materials to make the heavy machinery.

"Stalin contends," he said, "that Russia in five years can be put on a higher standard of living than any other country in the world," and the speaker added that he could start immediately by cutting down on the Red Army which is well fed and well clothed.

"Stealing from the government, not killing, is the worst crime in Russia, while speculation or trying to make a profit for yourself is the second worst crime," Lange said. Everything is owned by the government and everybody is working for the government, he pointed out. Because there are six times more women than men in Russia, women are as active if not more so in industry and government as men.

When the justice and constable claims were presented, showing many and varied amounts for Oshkosh police officers, L. W. Clark, Oshkosh, inquired why fees must be paid policemen who were being paid salaries. Supervisor T. J. Cotter said the checks were turned over to the city, and Chairman Shea said the money should be turned into the general fund of the city.

Menasha Society

Menasha — In an effort to raise funds for renovating the kitchen of the social hall, ladies of St. Patrick's Catholic parish have sent letters to all members of the church, enclosed in which is a miniature copy, in the pocket of which is a message in verse asking the member to measure his or her waistline and send a penny for each inch to the Sanctuary society. Mrs. Frank Oberweiser is chairman of the committee in charge.

Board of examining chaplains of the Fond du Lac diocese will meet at St. Thomas Episcopal church Monday to conduct examinations for two candidates for holy orders.

Band Drilling for Two Tournaments
St. Mary Musicians to Compete in Solo-Ensemble, Concert Events

Menasha — The St. Mary High school band, under the direction of G. W. Unser, has begun intensive practice for two tournaments to be held in the early part of May. The first tournament will be that of ensembles on May 7. The St. Mary entries will compete either at Shawano or Sturgeon Bay.

Soloists, duets, trios, quartets, quintets and other groups in the various divisions of the band, woodwinds, brasses and combinations, will compete in the May 7 tournament. Vocal groups will also compete in that festival. The band tournament will follow week at Manitowish, will include marching, concert and possibly maneuvering. Drum majors also will perform at that time.

The St. Mary band will be outfitted in new uniforms of blue and white for the tournaments. The band members have been fitted for uniforms and the suits have been ordered. They will be delivered in April.

About 40 different groups are expected to compete in the ensemble tournament while only the first band will compete at Manitowish.

Neenah Man Urges Understanding of Banking Functions
S. N. Pickard Is Speaker At Meeting of Credit Men

Neenah — Improved understanding of the true function of banking was advocated by Samuel N. Pickard, president of the Neenah National Manufacturers bank, Wednesday night in a talk at a meeting of the Central Wisconsin Association of Credit Men at the Atherton hotel, Oshkosh.

Discussing "Bank Credit," the speaker covered the fields of capital assets, funded debts, current assets, current liabilities and capital liabilities or capital and surplus.

A statement of the applicant's assets and liabilities is one of the first things a banker asks for when an application is made for a line of credit, the banker said. "I do not wish to infer, however, that the financial status of the applicant is the most important factor in the determination of his worthiness to receive unsecured credit. The true definition of the essentials of credit are the three Cs, character, capacity and capital, can not be improved upon for conciseness," he pointed out.

The true definition of the essentials of credit are the three Cs, character, capacity and capital, can not be improved upon for conciseness," he pointed out.

A banker's relations with his customers must be based on mutual confidence, Pickard said. A banker can give maximum service only where he has a full understanding of a business proposition. A correct knowledge of all the vital problems inherent with a particular business undertaking only can be gained by a frank and candid revelation by the borrower of all essential facts, the banker pointed out.

"A commercial bank's deposits are payable on demand and for this reason its assets must be easily convertible into cash within a reasonably short time," he explained. "A bank, of course, protects itself by carrying large cash means at all times, but its bill-pouch must be the banker's mainstay in meeting his obligations. For that reason the loans contained must be of a temporary nature and easily liquidated."

The instructions were sent in a registered letter by Judge Van Pelt from Montello, where he is now sitting in a term of circuit court. The judge likewise ordered District Attorney Magnusen to complete his investigation before turning over any evidence to the state bar association.

Oatman Kills Self
Alder conferred Tuesday at Montello with Judge Van Pelt, District Attorney Magnusen and several exhibits from the Oatman case were forwarded to the judge. These were returned with the instructions.

Judge Henry P. Hughes had called in Judge Van Pelt to sit in the Oatman case in circuit court at Oshkosh two weeks ago. Oatman, lumber salesman for the Hines Lumber Company, charged with procuring another to commit arson, took his own life early Friday morning, March 4, at the home of his father at Waukau, Wis. He had confessed and pleaded guilty and was to have been sentenced by Judge Van Pelt.

Debaters Will Go To Stevens Point

St. Mary Squad to Compete In District Tourney Saturday, Sunday

Menasha — St. Mary High school debaters this weekend will open their bid for a high rating in the final northwestern Wisconsin district of the Marquette interscholastic debate conference rankings which they participate in a meet at Stevens Point on Saturday and Sunday. They will continue their debating a week later, March 19 and 20, at Oshkosh. The debate subject is the unicameral legislature versus the bicameral legislature.

At Stevens Point the St. Mary squad will debate against LaCrosse Aquinas, St. Peter's of Oshkosh and St. Joseph's academy of Stevens Point. At Oshkosh they will oppose Lourdes High school of Marinette, St. Norbert college high school of DePere and St. Patrick high school of Eau Claire.

Members of the negative team of St. Mary High school are John Lux, James Eckrich and Joan Crawford, captain. The exact lineup of the affirmative team is not definite. M. E. Jacob is the captain and John Rippel is the second speaker. The first speaker will be either Joan Hickey or Grace Grade. The team is coached by Henry Krysiak while the Rev. Joseph Becker, principal of St. Mary High school, is the district chairman.

Transient Gets Jail Sentence for Vagrancy

Neenah Students To Compete in 2 Forensic Events

Speakers Entered in Ex-temporaneous Reading, Speech Divisions

Neenah — Neenah High school will enter only the extemporaneous reading and extemporaneous speech divisions of the forensic activities in the Wisconsin High School Forensic association contests this spring, it was announced today by Principal John H. Holzman.

Robert Ozanne, debate coach, will be in charge of extemporaneous speech and Miss Ruth Chalmers will be in charge of extemporaneous reading.

Neenah High school this season will be competing in the eighth league of the second sub-district with Menasha, Kaukauna and Two Rivers. There are a total of 68 schools in 15 leagues in the Oshkosh district. The district is divided into three subdistricts.

The district contests will be held Tuesday, April 19, at Oshkosh State Teachers college, where subdistrict contests must be completed no later than April 12, and league contests must be finished no later than April 7. The state forensics contests will be staged April 27 at Madison.

First and second place winners in each event in the league contests will be eligible to compete in the subdistrict contests, and likewise, first and second place winners in the subdistrict contests will compete in the district meet. Only first place winners in the district meets, however, will compete in the state tournament.

Schools in the second subdistrict are: Sixth league, Oconto Falls, Oconto, Kewaunee, Algoma and DePere; seventh league, Shawano, Clintonville, New London and West DePere; eighth league, Neenah, Menasha, Kaukauna and Two Rivers; and ninth league, Denmark, Brillion, Freedom and Wrightstown. T. J. McGlynn, DePere superintendent of schools, is chairman of the second district.

Mrs. Frank Smith Reviews Development of Auxiliary

Menasha — Thirty-six charter members attended the first meeting of the American Legion auxiliary 18 years ago this month and named Mrs. Frank Smith as the first president. It was reported in a brief history of the auxiliary at the eighteenth anniversary celebration Thursday evening in Elks hall. Today the membership is 136. About 125 legionnaires, their wives who are auxiliary members and invited guests attended the 6:30 dinner and program. The large birthday cake was cut by Mrs. Smith.

During her talk on the first organization activity of the auxiliary, Mrs. Smith stated that one time in Menasha, she was president of the auxiliary at the same time that her son was commander of the Legion post. It is believed that it was the first time in Legion and auxiliary history that a mother and son held offices at the same time.

Norman Michie and members of the Legion post quartet presented a program of musical selections. Mrs. Robert Des Jarlais, chairman of national defense committee, presented a talk on national defense and explained the auxiliary's stand on defense which emphasized peace but peace by preparedness. Cards were played during the social hour which followed the program with honors in schafkopf going to Frank Schwartzbauer and Mrs. Kena Kraus, in bridge to Harold Smith and Mrs. Mathilda Picard, in whist to Mrs. Ella Baenke, Jr., in rummy to Mrs. S. Bojarski, in 500 to Mrs. L. Kraft and in bunnies to Mrs. Carrie Winch. Mrs. Joe Solodski was the guest prize.

Menasha Doctors Will Cooperate in Anti-Disease Plan

Schedule Series of Clinics At Menasha in Prevention Program

Menasha — All local physicians will cooperate in the annual communicable disease prevention program which will open under the sponsorship of the Menasha board of health Monday and run through next Wednesday. The prevention program will be conducted from 9 a. m. to 12 o'clock noon. Parents bringing in pre-school children are requested to bring the children to the clinic the day designated for the children from their own school district.

The clinic will be conducted Monday morning at St. Mary High and grade schools and at the Butte des Morts school. On Tuesday the clinic will be conducted at St. John's, St. Patrick's, the Nicolet and the Jefferson schools. Wednesday morning the clinics will be conducted at the vocational, high and junior high schools as well as for the Visiting Nurse pre-school group.

"Failure on the part of individuals in our state, to avail themselves of the protection offered by vaccination has resulted in a generally increased prevalence of smallpox in recent months," Mrs. Sigrid Dudley, stated. "This prevalence of an easily preventable disease should not be considered lightly. Not only physicians and health officers but parents and educators should consider responsibility in securing protection by vaccination, especially of children. For practical protection, vaccination should be performed upon children before entering school, preferably before one year of age."

Mrs. Dudley also stressed the importance of immunization against diphtheria and stated that parents of pre-school and school children were urged by health departments to have the children immunized. Upwards of 250,000 children in Wisconsin have been immunized against diphtheria in the last 10 years. Today it is regarded as a necessity for every child.

Mrs. Albert Woeckner, Mrs. John Blank, Mrs. Otto Metz and Mrs. William Schultz won prizes in cards at the Circle 2 business and social meeting Thursday at the home of Mrs. Theodore Blank, Grove street. Nineteen members attended the meeting.

Men's club of St. Paul's English Lutheran church will meet at 7:30 Tuesday evening in the church basement and all men of the parish have been invited to attend the meeting. The feature of which is a surprise program, according to the Rev. Samuel H. Roth, pastor.

Mrs. C. T. Banks won first prize in bridge and Mrs. Richard Roth and Miss Vivian Knott won second and third place honors at the supper and bridge party at the Fred Robinson home on E. First avenue, when Mrs. Howard Bollerman

Mayor Proposes Grandstand as Relief Project

Calls Special Meeting to Act on WPA Construction of Stadium

Menasha — A special meeting of the common council has been called for 7:30 tonight at the city hall by Mayor W. E. Held to consider setting up a work relief project as well as several recommendations of the city planning commission.

Mayor Held will introduce the proposal for construction of a grandstand at the baseball park on Sixth street as a relief project. At present there is only one work relief project in the city, employing about 130 men. That is the Seventh street sewer project. At the rate that work has been going on there, Mayor Held fears that project may be completed and the men thrown back on city relief before another project is set up.

If the men were taken off the WPA and the city had to provide for them at the rate of $50 per month, costs would be $6,000 per month. The cost of the construction of a stadium at the ball grounds has already been approved as a WPA project.

The city would only have to pay for the cost of materials in the construction of the stadium. The mayor has estimated that the cost to the city would be about $3,000 for a $20,000 structure if salvaged materials were used. Details of the plan will be presented to the council by the mayor tonight. The mayor stressed the fact that he was not advancing this project for the sake of the stadium, but rather to have a project which will keep the men employed while a park and school ground project can be set up. It takes at least two months for a project to be set up—and time can be saved by using the present project.

Nadonly Will Continue As Ridgeway Instructor

Neenah — Joseph Nadonly, Menasha, again was chosen as professional for the Ridgeway Golf club at a meeting of the club officers and Clayton Land company Thursday evening at E. R. A. hall.

EMPIRE FOR A LADY

BY ALAN LEMAY

SYNOPSIS: Our love for a young English girl has plunged us into a world of adventure and danger. With Christine Forrester's support Clyde becomes rajah of tropical Balinggong, throwing out the predatory Malays, mortal enemies of the Dyaks. Rentong, the sultan's representative, takes revenge by destroying the most fertile village in our famine stricken raj. With 300 faithful Dyaks I move into the jungle, knowing defeat will end our dream of empire.

Chapter 41

In the long-winding stretches of the river where the channel was narrow and the jungle dense a constant sniping of spears, sumptuous, and guns at point-blank range kept picking off my people. At the end of a week I had abandoned three bankings and six lesser praus for lack of men.

We reached the first enemy village, and found it empty, stripped of all loot. We burned it — or at least left it a blackened, sooty mess, smudge-potting in the rain. But in spite of the perpetual strain of vigilance and the frequent fighting, I had too much time to think. I could understand my Dyaks, when they addressed me, and make myself understood, but never in my life had I felt so terribly alone. The drive of the paddles became a long monotony, hour after hour, day after day, as if it would never end, and there was time for many things to straighten themselves in my head. The situation into which we had penetrated was fully as bad as I had expected — in some ways worse. The heavy push of the flood so far had prevented the enemy from lodging log booms across the channel to block our praus, but I knew that a drop in the river would enable them to close the booms ahead of us and behind. We might have to fight harder getting out than we had fought getting in. The jungle on both sides of the river was fairly crawling alive with Tomarrup Dyaks; and yet, though we had now penetrated many days deeper into this river than I had ever traveled before, we were unable to come to grips. I no longer knew how much distance we had made, but I suppose that we had followed the windings of the Tomarrup at least 90 miles.

As yet we heard nothing to indicate that support was on its way. Though we listened constantly for friendly signals to sound at the far-off mouth. But I believed now that our mission in behalf of the white rajah would be accomplished whether we came out of there or not. Little as we had accomplished, we could no longer entirely lose what I could do for Clyde, and for Christine, was to establish in Sumatanga a fear of the white man. A few Malays could handle thousands of Dyaks because the Dyaks knew that no Malay was stopped until he was destroyed. Now my opportunity was to show that a white man cannot be turned by a Malay. When we had finished here it might be a long time before Clyde would have to fight again; and when he fought he would have superstitions as his ally.

Wild Exaltation
A queer fanaticism was coming into my Dyaks as they saw that I was not going to turn back. The Dyaks are not supported like the Malays by a belief that a man who dies in battle gains eternal paradise. They believe in four or five ghostly reincarnations, but these reincarnated spirits are mortal like themselves, and each is weaker than the one before, so that they peter out into a fog of things like that and are presently lost out of existence forever.

But there is one thing that a Dyak wishes to become when he is dead, and that is a Kamang. Only the most implacable Dyak warriors, they believe, are admitted to the hideous and terrible society of the Kamangs when they are dead. Going by this belief, my fighters were as good as Kamangs already. It put a strange wild exaltation into them in the pinches of the fighting, such as few Dyak warriors had ever got into their fighting before.

Strangely, I saw now that their belief was true, in a sense. Mr. Dyaks thought that when they were dead they would walk among their enemies spreading confusion and destruction—and they were right. Long after their bones were earth, these men would in truth still stalk the jungle, in the form of memories, in the form of fear, fighting harder for Clyde than they ever could if they stayed alive.

And in that long journey up the Tomarrup, in which I had so much more time to think than was good for me, I saw other things. For the first time I saw clearly why Clyde was here, and why I was here, and Christine, and I saw beyond what we were doing, and the schemes we were attempting, to the future effect of the things we did.

Christine was here because of a dead man's dream. It was Anthony Forrester who had taught her what to think.

He had thought that he could build something compact, complete, and orderly out of raw primitive stuff. He could not; and it was silly for him to think so. Sumatanga would be opened up, surely, but there would be half a century of exploitation, and another half century of diplomacy by governments on the other side of the world.

In the end there would be a certain improvement, doubtless; but by the time it came most of the population would have died off of white men's diseases, as they were already dying in the South Seas—and then the world would be no more than a poorly adapted imitation of something European. Why did Forrester think that such a big advantage? Had he never seen a London slum?

We had started by thinking Anthony Forrester a fool; then we had grown to respect both what he had done and what he planned; but now I looked through and beyond, and respect died, and I saw that the whole thing was fatuous and short-sighted.

Yet it had brought his daughter here, where she should never be—and Christine's insistence had dragged in Clyde. Now that he was roped in, Clyde was not following Forrester's dreams, but his own. In its way his plan was as fantastically over-ambitious as Forrester's, but it was built of harder, more durable stuff. Clyde was the trader, a man set upon a will to exploit, dominate, and possess.

All For Her
In the end he would destroy his health and his hopes and everything else, in his effort to get richer than any man ever needed to be. Asia and the South Seas would be dotted all over with men like Clyde—a self-seeking adventurers whose attempt to win big profits opened the way. He cared nothing about flags nor empires, but the great empires were built upon the bones of men like him.

And upon men like me. I was here because I worked for Clyde. At bottom I was nothing but first mate of the Linkang, on shore duty that had carried me a long way out of line. But like the others I brought to this a violent folly of my own which carried me to a fantastic extreme, beyond all duty.

I cared nothing about Clyde's plan to make himself extremely rich; I could see no advantage to being a rich man stuck in the Siderong river. And I was not inspired by the thought of power upon land and sea in the Sumatanga area; I would as soon have been the most popular character in a zoo. I cared even less about Anthony Forrester's dream, which Christine had inherited, to bring the British flag to Sumatanga. I owed no allegiance to any flag in these waters, and very little to my own, which was very far away, and played no part in this quarter of the world.

I was opposed to Malays as a matter of course, but when it came to the future of the Dyaks—I saw very few possibilities in a people who had no objections to headhunting.

I was bound into this thing by Christine. It was Christine herself who was my flag. I no longer believed that I would ever be able to forget this girl. The Tomarrup jungle was a hell of black water, and the thought of her didn't make it any better; but what she could do—had done—was to make all the rest of the world empty and desolate—as empty as the rest of my life.

Sometimes I thought of trying to take her away from James Clyde. But it had seemed to me from the first that she belonged to him, so that any false move on my part would have been much worse than lost. That much was decided, and could not be changed. I went on, half pushing me through motions that had all gone meaningless. There was nothing alive in me any more, except a nagging, aching hunger for the least glimpse of Christine, the least touch of her fingers, the least sound of her voice. I no longer cared where I was, or whether I was standing up or lying down, or whether I ever ate.

There was one exception to this—I knew I had to get out of Balingong, if only for a short respite. If I had to be near her every day I was going to be racked apart. I had to get out of there—and the chance to penetrate the Tomarrup was a rescue, in a way. I did not dread being left headless in the Tomarrup; what I dreaded, although war-necessity dictated it, was ever going back. To know certainly that I was never coming out of there would have been a blessed relief, in the lightless world in which I was now lost. (Copyright, 1938)

Catholic Youth Group Will Meet at Darboy

Darboy—The Catholic Youth Organization of Holy Angels parish will have a meeting on the evening of St. Patrick's day, March 17. The program will be in charge of the committee, who are Joseph Schwalbach, Gordon Mader, Eunice Emmers and Hildegarde Wittmann. Mrs. Peter Behling who has been a patient at St. Elizabeth hospital for the last two weeks, returned to her home on Tuesday.

Special lenten services with "The Way of the Cross" are held at Holy Angels church at 2:30 every Sunday afternoon and at 3 o'clock every Friday afternoon. The Rev. E. J. Schmit is in charge.

Dinner guests at the Fred Probst home Sunday were Miss Tillie Probst, Neenah, who left Tuesday morning for Hot Springs, Ark., where she will spend three weeks, and Mr. and Mrs. Seth Pedlin, Neenah.

The fourth six weeks tests will be given at Holy Angels school Thursday and Friday.

Pegler Has Ideas About All These Alleged Flames

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Los Angeles, Cal.—Last Nov. 9 Paul Wright assertedly shot and killed his wife and a man described as his best friend as they reportedly embraced in the drawing room of Mr. Wright's home. Mr. Wright reportedly had been drinking and allegedly had fallen asleep in another room. Reportedly, however, he awakened, and on re-entering the drawing room was so shocked by the asserted spectacle that described by a reputed white flame executed capital punishment on the steadily crring twain. The it-is-said slayer was arrested and tried three times, but won his freedom by the best two out of three decisions in the Los Angeles courts and believed is now seeking to rehabilitate himself in society.

Suspected, among the newspaper craft in the southern zone of California and to a less extent elsewhere these days, it is a release from responsibility for libel or error in journalism to qualify assertions or suggestions of alleged fact with such forms as "assertedly" and "reportedly," and these strange growths are now locally confirmed by usage and toleration in legitimate newspapers.

Supposedly this is a revival and an explanation of the old-fashioned and generally discarded journalistic use of the word "alleged" as a fire escape from responsibility, and on being tested in court the whole vocabulary of new immunities may crash expensively as "alleged" did some years ago. However, it is thought, edly, or thinkedly, libel proof to date, and your correspondent is conducting this experiment on an assumedly open and shut case, high public officials believe.

Mr. Wright's defense was twofold. He was not guilty because he did not do the assertedly killing and not guilty because he was claimedly insane when he did that which he did not do. In the first trial the jury rejected his contentedness and found him guilty of manslaughter. But in the second trial the same citizens believed his story of the described white flame and vindicated him on the ground of insanity. There followed then a third performance or trial to determine whether this insanity was temporary or lingering, and the verdict was that the purported white flame was but the matter of an instant. He was crazy only for give, at a future date, an unhappy Negro who chargedly shot and killed two law officers who went to his little cabin to dispossess and evict him for purported default of his alleged payments.

The Negro rumoredly was so frantic at the thought of losing his family's little shelter that he fetched his contended gun and describedly fired, and there is naturally great sympathy for him, although, in the absence of the sex element, he may have a more difficult time with a Los Angeles jury.

The defense in this case, it is hoped, will introduce a distinct scientific novelty—the black flame—on a date not far in the future the newspapers predicted will repeat that to understand is to forgive, and report that while Sabbath bel's tolled the faithful to worship the black flame slayer walked out of the county jail a free man, police believe.

Gets Check for $794 From State Department

F. A. W. Hammond, city relief director, has received a check for $793.50 from the state welfare department, the amount representing the last of a sum due to Appleton, Kaukauna and Little Chute while they were under the group system of relief. The system was discontinued two years ago. The money will be given to the municipalities on the basis of audits now being completed.

Capital Needed to Revive Business, Babson Declares

Suggests Investment Trusts For Small Businesses Needing Money

BY ROGER BABSON
Babson Park, Fla. — One of the big reasons why the 1937 prosperity did not "catch" was the dearth of new expansion and new enterprise. Building new factories, installing more efficient equipment, introducing novel products, and the like, should offset the losses from decaying industries. Before these things happen, however, people with money must be willing to risk it by financing such new industries. They must not prefer just to "salt" it away in government bonds. What the United States needs today is not that kind of salt, but the right kind of pep.

The necessary confidence to take risks was lacking in 1937. It has been lacking ever since 1929, —and it is still absent today. There are many reasons why, but the principal one is the money and bookkeeping policy of the federal government. New capital financing is practically nil at the moment. Underwriting profits are so small and the liabilities under the Securities Exchange act so severe, that it takes a brave "house" to tackle a piece of new financing. So there are very few new loans being floated now.

Hard to Get Capital
Most of the big companies do not want new capital at present anyway. Like the people who have the money to invest, they are afraid to make new commitments right now. They are "sitting tight" until congress repeals or greatly modifies the undistributed profits tax. On the other hand, there are a number of small business concerns who say they need "new money." These little fellows aired their troubles at Washington last month. They listed the difficulty to get new capital as one of their major problems. They feel that if no one else will, the government should help them in getting their needed capital.

These small businessmen want sums — between $10,000 and $250,000 — but they cannot get money either from commercial banks or from investment bankers. Commercial banks nowadays prefer to make loans of only 30, 60, or 90 days. They do not want to lend substantial amounts for four or five years. The depression taught them that commercial banks should make only short-term temporary loans. Many of these small businessmen do not realize it, but what they really need is more permanent money rather than temporary borrowing. This additional capital should be secured by issuing and selling more stock in their concerns.

Can't Sell New Securities
In the money market, however, the small corporation finds such financing almost impossible. Under the Securities Exchange act most new securities cannot be issued without filing a great mass of detailed data with the commission. Furthermore, the issue has to be okayed by the Blue Sky authorities of each individual state in which the securities are to be sold. Hence, legal and accounting fees wipe out the meagre investment

Author Of The Week

WILLIAM SEABROOK, who once had himself locked up in an asylum to shake off the hold of Demon Rum, has been investigating the condition of "foreigners" in America. Seabrook has toured the land, come to the conclusion that America has been pretty decent to her step-children that the melting pot really works. He calls his research "These Foreigners."

banking profits on small issues. Furthermore, underwriters in New York city or Chicago are not crazy to sell a new security issue of a pants company in Okolona, Mississippi or a mining outfit in Eureka, California.

With the closing of these two major avenues for new capital — commercial banks and capital markets — small business has only two alternatives left. One is the loan shark, who specializes in loans to little companies and who charges a tremendous rate of interest. The other is the time-honored and most sensible approach — by selling bonds or stock to local businessmen and investors who know the company's management, history, and character. Local people, however, are so frightened by President Roosevelt's attack on business that they will not now invest a penny in new enterprises or expansion.

Little Help from RFC
Hence, local financing is not feasible now, particularly when the loan is between $100,000 and $250,000. This is a sizeable fund to be picked up locally even in normal times and outside aid must be sought. It was situations of this type that the administration had in mind when it recently threw open the $1,500,000,000 assets of the Reconstruction Finance corporation to small business. The regulations concerning both federal reserve bank and R. F. C. loans, however, are restrictive. The former, for instance, are limited to five years for "working capital" rather than fixed capital purposes. Hence, a big portion of the applications for loans by small businesses must be rejected.

The latest proposal is for investment trusts to fill this financing void. They do so in England. The plan would be for the investment trusts to divide themselves into two classes: One group would confine its investments to "conservative" seasoned securities. The other group — frankly termed "speculative trusts" — would provide new capital for small companies

Kimberly Relief Costs Decline $44 During February

Kimberly — Relief costs in the village for February dropped $44, according to a report issued Wednesday by the relief committee. Henry J. Kilsdonk, chairman, and John Busch, during February relief totaled $304.06 while in the previous month it amounted to $348.53. There were 11 cases on relief last month.

Items listed on the report include: rent, $45; meats, $32.30; groceries, $98.12; milk, $18.90; clothing, $4.81; fuel, $89.28; light and water, $5.85 and medical, $9.70.

The Parkinson's National Musical Ensemble will entertain at the high school assembly program next Tuesday.

George McElroy who is receiving applications for an amateur contest for old-timers over fifty years of age reports that several contestants have already been signed up. Although no date has been set for the program, which is to be held at the clubhouse, it is expected to be held before Easter. Among the applications received is one from a man 68 years old who will do some acrobatic stunts.

The Fleur-de-Lis were entertained at the home of Mrs. Emma Pockan, Appleton, Tuesday evening. Schafkopf was played and prizes were awarded to Mrs. Joe Mennen, first, Mrs. Frank Courchane second, and Mrs. Collard of Oconto.

Elke who was a guest at the club received traveling prize. Next week the club will play at the home of Mrs. August Schwanke.

by buying their newly issued stock or bonds. Such investment trusts would act as a pool of "new money" for little corporations who cannot now finance through other channels.

This sounds like a sensible scheme to me. It offers a more practical solution than having Uncle Sam, through the R. F. C., become a partner in, or creditor of thousands of small concerns. These trusts would do for little businesses what S. Z. Mitchell did for the little utilities when he organized Electric Bond and Share over 30 years ago. The only better solution would be the passage of needed recovery measures by congress and the speaking of a few friendly words to business by the president. The resultant return of confidence would then break the dam holding back new capital so that small businesses could get their needed funds from local sources. (Copyright, 1938)

Assists County Nurse

In Tuberculosis Work

Miss Thelma Burke, Racine, of the state board of health, is assisting Miss Marie Klein, Outagamie county nurse, on the follow-up work on the tuberculosis program begun two years ago in the county. The work which includes completing case histories in families where persons showed positive reaction to the tests and completion of reports, will take several months.

DHIA Officials Hold District Conferences

Farm accounts and other herd records used by Wisconsin dairymen in their program of herd improvement work will occupy the consideration of fieldmen and officers of dairy herd improvement associations at a series of district meetings to be held, one at Appleton, during March and April.

The Appleton meeting will be held on Wednesday, March 23. Other meetings will be held at Barron, Spooner, Abbotsford, Green Lake, Shawano, Kewaunee, West Bend, Sheboygan, Lancaster, Monroe and Elkhorn.

Coalition Meeting May Be Held at Green Bay

The Eighth Congressional district coalition meeting probably will be held at Green Bay but no definite date has yet been set, according to Elmer Honkamp, district coalition chairman. Honkamp was at Marinette yesterday afternoon arranging for a meeting in that county. He also has conferred with temporary chairmen in Manitowoc and Sheboygan counties on their county meetings. The Manitowoc county meeting will be held Monday, March 21.
